Demand For Old Records Puzzle

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Former British cabinet ministers are puzzled, the News Chronicle said today, at the receipt of a mysterious demand from Downing Street for instant surrender of all official cabinet documents in their possession.

The demand was made of every minister who held office since 1919. In cases where ministers have since died, the request was made of their executors. About 100 ministers are involved, said the News Chronicle, including David Lloyd George, Viscount Snowden, Winston Churchill, Sir Herbert Samuel, Arthur Henderson and Sir Austen Chamberlain.

The newspaper wondered if the demand is a step to "muzzle" criticism of political moves since 1931 or is intended to prevent former cabinet ministers from using official documents for the purpose of memoirs or newspaper articles.

INSULL HEARS STATE'S CASE FRAUD CHARGE

Crafty Financier Stood to Make Cold $28,000,000 Himself

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—From the books and records of some 75 corporations, the U.S. government Thursday began assembling proof in support of its claim that Samuel Insull's "Corporation Securities Company of Chicago" was only a weapon with which to take $100,000,000 from investors.

United States district attorney Dwenght H. Green, outlined his case in the government's opening statement. The young prosecutor promised to prove:

1—That while investors lost about $100,000,000 when the company sank, Insull himself received, in all, more than $28,000,000 from it.

2—That the company was launched as a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat and defraud the public."

3—That while issuing stocks and bonds for which investors paid $143,000,000 in all, Insull and the others "rigged the market—being secretly behind every single transaction, in one month, which occurred on the Chicago Stock Exchange and gave the company's stock lustre."

22 Lives Lost in Fighting

MADRID, Oct. 5.—Battling forces of Spanish extremists, attempting to overthrow the government of Spain, today captured Eibar, the firearms centre of the nation and the first town that rebelled when the monarchy fell and Spain became a republic.

At least 22 men were dead and 100 wounded in fighting throughout Spain when the Radicals swarmed through the town.

Red flags waved from some of the city halls.

Government 'planes massed in a squadron flew over Eibar and two regiments of mountain troops as well as assault guard companies from San Sebastin and Victoria were sent to the rescue of the city.

Eibar's communications were cut at noon.

The whole city, including most of its inhabitants, is devoted almost entirely to the manufacture or arms for the national army. There, everything from pistols to small cannon are built.

AGED WOMAN MURDERED BY HER OWN SON

Mother-in-Law of Ontario Health Official Succumbs to Wounds

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 5.—A warrant was issued today for arrest of Harold Vermilyea, 49, of Ontario, Cal., charging him with murder of his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea. The aged woman, mother-in-law of Hon. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario minister of health, died today of wounds inflicted last night by an assailant who attacked her with a hatchet.

The attack on the aged woman occurred in shrubbery beside the side-door leading to the office of Dr. Faulkner in his residence here. The man called at the home of the widow of Dr. S. J. Farley, where Mrs. Vermilyea was living.

Vermilyea was sought after provincial and city police learned he had visited his mother last night for a 5-cent fare. Officers said he arrived here Monday and sought his mother, but failed to find her at home.

Mrs. Vermilyea, her head battered and her right limb almost severed from the wrist, did not regain consciousness to identify her assailant, but police swore out a warrant for his arrest after learning of his visit.

No one identified the man who attacked Mrs. Vermilyea last night although a neighbor saw a man lurking in the darkness as he rushed to the street on hearing the woman scream.

Mrs. Vermilyea conversed with the man for a while in the Farley home. They both left the Farley home and walked two blocks to where the woman's daughter, Mrs. Faulkner, dwelt. As the aged woman and man reached the side entrance of the Faulkner home the attack was said to have occurred.

Mrs. Vermilyea's screams were heard by people on the street and they reported seeing the man

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5—Paul Dean, brilliant Fresham right-hander, duplicated the opening day feat of big brother (Dizzy) by pitching the St. Louis Cardinals into a two to one game lead over the Detroit Tigers today with a 4 to 1 victory in the third game of the world series.

It was a duel of right-handers as Tommy Bridges, brilliant Tiger speed artist, opposed Paul Dean, younger of the famous Cardinal brothers and a major league freshman.

A crowd estimated at 38,000 or more fans took advantage of the balmy weather to see the rival pennant winners battle for the 3-1 edge that will go to the victor today.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, Tiger mainstay behind the bat, and his shortstop, Billy Rogell, both were limping during practice as a result of injuries in yesterday's game at Detroit, but they stayed in the lineup. Cochrane was spiked in one thigh as he blocked off Joe Medwick at the plate. Rogell twisted an ankle going two bases on the fly ball that just eluded Ernie Orsatti's clutch. Herman "Flea" Clifton, Texas League recruit, was held ready as a replacement if Rogell's limping failed to carry him through the game.

Orsatti also was a semi-casualty as the Cardinal centre-fielder was still bothered by a charley-horse and had a small cut over one eye, the result of an accident in breaking his sun-glasses yesterday.

Promptly on schedule the umpires went into a huddle at the start. Umpire Cochrane called Frisch, the rival managers, to settle any questionable points about the ground rules. The second item stood while the band played the Star Spangled Banner.

FANS IN SHIRT-SLEEVES

There was barely a whisper of breeze and the sun shone brightly on the shirt-sleeved throng in the outfield bleachers as the Cardinals romped out on the field.

Cochrane decided he had something further to discuss with the officials before the game got under way and there was another conference in the middle of the diamond. Apparently there was some question about the rules governing balls hit toward the temporary box seats.

FIRST INNING

TIGERS—White lifted a high foul to Durocher, who circled back and gloved hand, making a sensational catch just in front of the boxes off left field. Cochrane drilled swinging at a fast curve. Gehringer dropped a Texas League single into left centre, Greenberg fouled out to Delancey midway down the first base line.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

CARDINALS—Martin hit against the screen in right field for a triple. Pepper slid head first into third. Rothrock smashed a long fly to White and Martin scored. There was not even an attempt for a play at the plate. Frisch singled sharply to right. The Tigers went into a huddle and Bridges, in the box but Cochrane decided to keep Tommy on the job. Medwick fanned and Frisch was thrown out trying to steal, Cochrane to Gehringer.

One run, two hits, no errors, none left.

SECOND INNING

TIGERS—Rudy bounced a hit over Frisch's head and ran to second as the ball got past Rothrock. Fox flied to Martin and Rothrock. Rogell flied to Medwick. Goslin holding second. Owen was safe on a fielder's choice, Medwick to first. Fox popped to Martin back of first base. Bridges fanned on a third called strike.

Physician Performs Caesarian Operation in Hurry to Save Baby Girl in California Hospital.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 5.—A baby born ten minutes after the death of her mother, Mrs. Eleen Lewis, 35, of Oakland, Thursday gave promise of living a normal life span. The unusual birth occurred last Sunday but only became known yesterday. Had Mrs. Lewis lived the baby would have been born in about three weeks' time.

The woman was stricken with a severe headache last Sunday, and Dr. Robert J. McIver ordered her at once to a hospital. In the hospital, Dr. McIvor began his examination. Before he had finished his diagnosis Mrs. Lewis died and an autopsy disclosed a brain hemorrhage as the cause. For four frantic minutes Dr. McIvor struggled to revive the woman. Then he called for surgical instruments.

The doctor worked quickly, and performed a quick Caesarian operation. Six minutes after he began he held an apparently dead seven pound, 13 ounce baby in his hands. After 20 minutes of artificial respiration the little girl began breathing normally, and hospital attendants said yesterday she was doing well.

LABOR FACES TOUGH FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Storm clouds generated by two long smouldering issues began forming at the American Federation of Labor convention here Thursday.

Contention over the question of vertical unions—organization of workers by industries instead of by crafts—developed into the point where Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, announced he would offer a compromise plan.

PREMIER ASKS WHEAT BOARD

CALGARY, Oct 5.—Advocating a federal government board to supervise operation of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, Premier R. C. Reid of Alberta declared here Thursday, in his opinion it was foolish, as far as the interests of the Dominion were concerned, to have the exchange run by private interests.

"It is all right when people actually are selling wheat, which is there," said Mr. Reid, "but when they sell wheat that is not there, then it is different."

The premier favored operation of the exchange along lines followed at Chicago, where the United States government supervised operations. A Canadian federal government board, he said, would require power to regulate the whole business of grain trading so as to avoid all abuses which have been made in the past.

No Decision On Camrose Nominee

CAMROSE, Oct. 5—In connection with a news item appearing Thursday which stated that the executive of the Camrose Liberal association had decided not to pledge support to George P. Smith, a member of the executive has stated that the body made no decision regarding support to any particular candidate.

Discussion was on whether the executive would unite on some one candidate or leave the matter open to be decided following the federal constituency convention. The opinion is held in many quarters in Camrose that if Mr. Smith allows his name to go before the convention for the federal riding, he will receive strong support.

flee down the street. These witnesses described the man as 35 or 40 years of age, wearing a grey coat and carrying what was believed to be a hatchet.

Dr. T. H. Stobie was summoned and he placed the aged woman in hospital. Following an examination of the head wounds and the slashed wrist the doctor said Mrs. Vermilyea could not live.

Five deep gashes were inflicted in Mrs. Vermilyea's head, her right hand severed from the wrist and loss of blood and the woman's age offer little hope for her recovery.

Between the houses of Dr. Faulkner and Professor V. D. Hunt, organist of Bridge street United church, police discovered a hatchet covered with blood and hair, believed the one used in the assault. It was the type of hatchet used in splitting kindling wood or cutting meat.

Mrs. Vermilyea screamed and she was heard by Prof. Hunt who rushed out of his home in time to see a shadowy form of a man disappearing between the two houses. Albert Faulkner, son of Mrs. Vermilyea, found her lying on the ground and he summoned an ambulance.

EAST LOCARNO PACT DROPPED

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Daily Telegraph said Thursday that France had decided to abandon pourparlers with Germany and Poland on the question of the proposed "Eastern Locarno" pact.

The Conservative organ said that after careful study, Paris had decided the German and Polish replies did not entirely remove the possibility of understanding between these nations. Pending the issue of discussions now under way, the paper added, nothing further would be done in connection with the Soviet proposals urging even closer understanding between France and the Soviet Union.

Glacier Priest Predicts Quake In U.S. In 1939

NANAIMO, B.C., Oct. 5.—An earthquake of major dimensions, which may take place in California sometime in 1939 or 1940, is forecast by Rev. Father Bernard Hubbard, "Glacier Priest" of Alaska who was enroute to the United States last night after calling here on his way back from the north.

Father Hubbard, professor of geology at the University of Santa Clara, Calif., fresh from an expedition to various glaciers and volcanoes in Alaska, bases his forecast on the fact that it is situated on the San Andreas drift which, geologically speaking "slips" about three times in a century. With the last major earthquake in 1906, Father Hubbard thinks the next one due in late 1939.

One of his conferences at the University of Santa Clara plotted the last big quake to the day.

Knott Will Again Seek Mayoralty

Civic election rumors were buzzing Friday morning concerning possible candidates for the mayoralty with the names of three prominent business men, James M. Douglas, W. J. Henry and Alderman J. H. Ogilvie, being actively mentioned.

A petition is being circulated asking Alderman Ogilvie to permit his name to be placed in nomination. Interviewed by the Bulletin, Mr. Ogilvie stated he knew nothing of the petition, and had given no consideration to the question of permitting his name to go to nomination for the mayoralty.

Neither Mr. Henry or Mr. Douglas could be reached, but it is understood that representations have been made to both from influential sources to permit their names to be put in nomination.

It was learned that Mayor D. K. Knott would be definitely in the field, but whether he would run with labor endorsation or on an independent ticket has not yet been decided by him.

Southern Rail Agent Visitor

"The desire to travel prevails amongst the people, and railway companies throughout Canada and the United States are catering to this desire by instituting a series of trips at reduced rates to beauty spots on the North American continent," stated Cecil G. Alton, Canadian passenger and traffic agent, Southern Pacific Railway Co., who is a business visitor in Edmonton. Mr. Alton, a former Edmontonian, now makes his headquarters at Vancouver.

"Both Canada and America benefit from these excursions, with possibly the balance in favor of the Canadian tourist trade," he said. Business during the summer has been exceptionally good, and we are looking for a steady stream of tourist traffic during the fall and winter months especially to California to which state most attractive rates are available, he declared.

Mr. Alton will stop over here for several days soliciting business and conferring with local railway officials.

"No person has a right to destroy a work of art," Lie commented, but added he hadn't made up his mind whether "that nightmare of 1934," the picture which Smiuske damaged, was "a work of art."

"Anyway," he said, "I think this man has been punished enough already."

Dad Tells His Son Why He Is Going To Convert Victory Bonds

". . . In 1919, when you were nearly ten and beginning to sit up and take notice, I invested $2,000 in Victory Bonds. The war was over, business was booming, and Canada floated the final Victory Loan to pay off post-war obligations. It was one of the most successful of all the war loans. Everyone was enthusiastic about it, and subscribed to the limit of his (or her) ability. I was one of 800,000 persons who bought the bonds. But at that time I didn't realize what a good thing I had in my Victory Bonds. They have been the best investment I ever made.

"On November 1st I shall receive my final interest payment and get back my original $2,000. Now consider this,—on the original $2,000 I have received $110 in interest each year for fifteen years—$1,650 in all. I put the interest in the bank every six months and have let it compound itself. My original $2,000 has now grown to over $4,000. So, of course, I am reinvesting the whole $4,000 in the new Refunding Loan.

"True, the interest rate now isn't so high. But times have changed. Money is far cheaper today. And I have learned that it does not pay to try to get better than the going rate. I've been in and out of a number of things since 1919—I've sometimes gone after high returns rather than safety, and I've been sorry. Experience has taught me that Dominion of Canada Bonds are the finest nest-egg for your mother and me. If we happen to need the money we can always sell them. So far, we've been able to get along without touching either interest or principal, and, of course, I've bought other Dominion Bonds since.

"The way I look at it, my boy, is that if Dominion of Canada Bonds were an excellent investment in 1919—and they were—they are an even better investment today. Canada has weathered some pretty tough times during the past few years, and come out on top. So I'm going to stick with my investment.

"This Refunding Loan, my boy, is a great thing for the country as well as for the individual. It's going to help business. I find that most men of my age, whom I know, are thinking as I am and are converting their Bonds. I know you haven't any Bonds to convert, but, if I were you, I'd subscribe for a thousand or two of this new Loan—as much as you can buy. I don't think you can do better . . ."

CITY GAS OFF 4 HOURS AS MAIN BREAKS

Big Main Bursts Under Pressure—Warnings Given Promptly

Due to a serious break in one of the feeder mains of the Edmonton natural gas system, citizens were without fuel for cooking and heating for approximately four hours Thursday afternoon, but normal service was restored shortly after eight o'clock last night throughout the city. Company workmen completed repairs to the main long before this, but the danger of fire necessitated sufficient time to distribute warnings to individual householders over the city to avoid danger when the gas was turned on again.

Bursting under the force of increased pressure during an annual test, a length of pipe in the gas company's main feed line was shattered at about 3:35 p.m. Thursday, necessitating the suspension of the gas supply to the entire city until after 8 p.m. The break occurred near the intersection of 82 street and 82 avenue and so great was the force of the explosion that a large hole was ripped in the ground. About 10,000 consumers were affected.

Emergency crews were immediately rushed to the break by Northwestern Utilities and firemen from the South hall, under Deputy Chief James McGregor were ordered to stand by in case of fire from the leaking line.

PRESSURE TEST

It was announced by the gas company officials that the break had occurred when engineers were conducting the annual pressure test. As the pressure was increased, a weak spot in the transmission line on 82 avenue gave way, and the explosion resulted. This was reported to be the only weak spot in the entire line, extending from the gas field at Viking to Edmonton.

The line was repaired and ready for use by 8 p.m., but owing to the fact that pressure in the distribution system had fallen, presenting the danger of gas fires being extinguished in some homes, the company decided to give all consumers ample warning of the interruption. Service therefore, was not resumed until 8:10 p.m.

Deep blasts from the company's big horn at its 104 street headquarters gave warning of the failure of the gas supply. This signal was repeated for a short time after eight o'clock as a means of informing users that service had once again been restored to normal.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Every precaution was taken by the company to guard against accidents during the interruption. All carrier boys from both Edmonton newspapers were sent out on routes covering the whole city, and supplied notices warning customers of the break in the service and also instructing them to safeguards which should be observed during the temporary interruption.

Where a householder was not at home, notices were tacked on both the front and rear doors of the house.

Police were ready at the company's headquarters in case it was deemed advisable to gain entrance to premises when owners were away.

The third precautionary step was the strong "dose" of deodorant forced into the main feed gas line. This made the odor from escaping gas much stronger and readily detectable.

As the carrier boys arrived back in the company's office a full and detailed report was received from each as to the number of notices delivered, and also as to the number of homes from which occupants were absent.

HORN BLOWS

The entire city had been covered by 8 p.m. and ten minutes later the big fog horn announced the resumption of service.

According to a report received from one of the gas firm's officials late Thursday, no damage had resulted from the interruption.

The last occurrence of this nature happened on January 2, 1928, when consumers were without fuel for a much longer period than was the case Thursday.

Some inconvenience was caused consumers Thursday by reason of the fact that the fuel supply failed during the late afternoon and at a time when the majority of housewives were getting ready to prepare the evening meal. In most cases the interruption was discovered by the householder, while messenger, telephone and radio services warned the remaining customers of the break in the service.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

Following is the official statement on the occurrence received from Northwestern Utilities, Ltd.:

"Yesterday's interruption of service was due to the bursting of a length of pipe in the main transmission line within the city limits during the course of the annual main pipe line test. The break took place at about 3:35 p.m. The repair crew was immediately on the job, a new length of pipe was laid with remarkable expedition, and gas could again have been turned into the system at 8 o'clock. Unfortunately, in the meantime the gas in the distribution system had become heavily depleted and the fires in many appliances had been extinguished for lack of gas.

"The company feared that if gas were turned on at once, people noticing the fires out would immediately apply a match which would ignite the accumulated gas and cause explosions which might do considerable damage. It was in mind the usual warning by the blowing of the company's fog horn was given and the distribution of the written emergency notices, which are always in readiness, was immediately commenced.

"These notices are delivered to the premises of all consumers. In addition, the widest possible publicity was given by means of the radio, which it hopes will point the way to an annual saving of at least $10,000.000 in carrying mail abroad.

Ordered by Postmaster General James Farley, upon the direction of President Roosevelt himself, to appear and show cause why they should not "should not be modified or cancelled," 32 ocean mail and four foreign airmail carriers may be questioned on the use they have made of the $32,000,000 a year the government has been paying them for their services.

The foreign airmail contractors to be heard and their compensation for the 1933 fiscal year include: Canadian Colonial Airways, Inc., $89,138; Seattle-Victoria Air Mail Inc., $16,034.

CANARY FLIES FAR IN COLD; STILL SINGING

REGINA, Oct. 5—Canada's hardiest canary flew from its cage on a farm 10 miles northeast of Regina over a month ago. Winds blew, snow fell and the mercury dropped down almost to zero during that time.

Tuesday night it was found sitting on the back of a car at a filling station, a mile north of the city. Miss Edith Anticknap, claimed it at the police station where it was chirping from a cardboard box.

The songster had flown its cage when it was left on the verandah of the farm home. When Miss Anticknap came to the city with the canary still at large. The canary had made eight of the miles toward its new home by wing when it was captured.

It was reported to be thin but still with a chirp or two left and ready to tackle a bit of apple.

RAIL MERGER IS OPPOSED

VANCOUVER, Oct. 5—Railroad consolidation must be viewed in the light of social welfare, rather than in the abstract concept of efficient and economical operation, A. F. Whitney of Cleveland, international president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, declared Thursday in addressing the Vancouver Board of Trade.

"Apart from the selfish, private profit motive, there can be no economy or social welfare in the course which might save a few million dollars in railroad operation; but would throw thousands of men idle, load by a far greater amount," he said.

Canada cannot hope to benefit in the long run from consolidation of railways with resultant destruction of railroad trackage, he declared.

Man Escapes When Struck By Auto

Knocked off his feet when a car hit him as he crossed the intersection of 96 street and 103 avenue at 1:55 p.m. Thursday, Sam Rochemere surprised by-standers by getting up, dusting himself off and walking away.

W. F. Empey, 11305 98A street, driver of the car, was accompanied by a steady clip when Rochmere ran out in front of the machine, to be clipped off his feet by the fender and tossed for several yards. He escaped without a scratch.

Vitamin D Milk Offered In East

TORONTO, Oct. 5—A vitamin D milk will be presented to the public by Toronto milk dealers within a week or two. The Canadian Medical Association Journal announces the value of the milk in a report written by Dr. T. G. H. Drake.

Mounties At Show

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. — For the first time in its history, the forthcoming New York Horse Show, November 7, will have a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police as participants, it was announced today.

"While the company's decision to withhold turning on the gas undoubtedly caused a great deal of inconvenience to its consumers by delaying the evening meal, it was felt that this was preferable to taking a chance of explosions which might result from some careless or forgetful person applying a light to an appliance without realizing that gas was already escaping.

"The break occurred, as already stated, within the city limits but only a block and a half east of the company's main regulating station in Bonnie Doon. The result was that no gas was available except what was in the distribution system.

"The inspection which commenced at the Viking end has been completely successful and no leaks or defects were found elsewhere. The company has every confidence that the system is in perfect operating condition and that the one weak spot has been located and rectified.

"The company very greatly appreciates the courtesy and goodwill which has been exhibited by its many friends and customers in this somewhat trying situation. It also desires to thank the city police, the city telephone department, the Edmonton Journal and Edmonton Bulletin and their newsboys who distributed the emergency notices with very great speed, and the proprietors of CJCA and CFTP for the free use which they allowed the company to make of the radio.

ROWE STANDS WITH GIANTS OF BASEBALL

22-Year-Old Hurler Casts Big Shadow Across Cards' Chances

By ALAN GOULD

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe stands today alongside the pitching giants of world series history, towering as mightily and casting as big a shadow now across the chances of the St. Louis Cardinals as Jerome (Dizzy) Dean did in his jungletown days two days ago.

BLAZING FINISH

The world series record books fail to show any nine-inning stretch of pitching, over a 30-year span, superior to the blazing finish of the 22-year-old, six-foot-four-inch boy from El Dorado, Ark., who mowed down the Cardinals from the fourth to the 12th inning, following only one hit, facing only 28 batsmen and issuing not a single base on balls during the entire game.

The nearest comparisons to Rowe's spectacular feat, in his second series display, are the feats of Big Ed Ruelback, old right-hander of the Chicago Cubs; Herb Pennock of the late New York Yankees, and George Earnshaw of the Athletics.

ONE-HIT VICTORY

Ruelback scored a one-hit victory over the Chicago White Sox in the 1906 series within the regulation nine innings, a performance that is the closest on the books to a perfect game.

Pennock pitched no-hit, no-man-reach-first-base ball for the first seven innings of a game against the Pittsburgh Pirates seven years ago.

In the 1931 series between the Athletics and Cardinals, Earnshaw, big right-handed speedball artist of the A's, blanked the Cardinals in the fourth game, 3-0, yielding only two hits. Earnshaw issued a single pass in that game, but retired the National Leaguers in order in the other six innings.

LIBERALS ARE SANE RADICALS SAYS HOWSON

Standout Study Club Meet Considers Unemployed Insurance

Indicative of the swelling interest in the work of the Edmonton Liberal Study Group, Thursday night's meeting at McLeod Building headquarters was a standout. Every seat was occupied and standers were grouped about the balance of the hall. Primarily the night's subject was confined to Plank No. 11 in the provincial platform, by which support is pledged to an adequate system of contributory unemployment insurance.

While the major portion of the meeting was devoted to this, the Liberal leader, Mr. W. R. Howson, M.L.A., was heard in connection with the coming provincial Economic Conferences at Stettler, Vermilion, Edmonton, and also the provincial-federal conference set for Calgary on December 1.

Commending members of the Study Club for their interest and endeavor, Mr. Howson credited them with adding materially to the building of the intensely practical provincial platform.

WOMAN QUESTIONER

A woman questioner during debate had asked why the designation "radical" should evoke opprobrium. She real definition could not imply stigma, said Mr. Howson. The Alberta Liberal party was radical, but its actions were common sense and its ideas replete with sanity and reason made practical for mass good and welfare. He would be glad if every Liberal would be a radical of this sort, and that it could no longer be said that there were three kinds of Liberals, i. e., "Tory-Liberals," "Lazy Liberals" and "Timid Souls."

The meeting was urged to make up motor caravans to attend the economic conferences, particularly the Calgary provincial-federal session, where such problems as markets, monetary reform, Peace River outlet, Central Alberta drought problems would be freely discussed on a wide-open agenda.

SUPPORT INSURANCE

An aggressive group of speakers presented reasons why the Alberta Liberal party should espouse the unemployment insurance proposal. They included W. G. Brown, R. G. Watson, Gregory Scully, C. W. Lee, Walter S. Campbell, J. Robinson and others. During the question and comment period several women members of the audience entered the discussion to give information and ideas.

From figures he secured in public accounts, Mr. Watson said that in 1932-33 total Alberta relief cost upon this province's 800,000 population was $4,500,000. There was an expenditure of $4,000 per annum during this relief which meant $100 a year relief for each. Almost 10,000 of these were heads of families. The system was expensive, and the speakers outlined contributory systems whereby workers could ensure against unemployment, want and suffering without relief as a dole system.

MACHINE AGE BLAMED

All speakers agreed that the machine age was largely responsible for unemployment and suggestions were made that the "machines" of industry should be made to absorb the costs of man-power wage loser they created. Earlier withdrawing of elderly workers—to give youth its

CRIME TRAIL WILL BE TOLD DEATH PROBE

Inquiry To Be Held Into Shooting of Store Robber By Policeman

A long trail of crime that led through the courts and penitentiaries to death on the corner of 101 street and 86 avenue early Thursday morning for ex-convict William Kwasnik, 30, Wetaskin, as a hand to hand fight with Constable James Miles for the possession of his gun, will be told on the witness stand Friday afternoon by five persons called to testify in police court before Dr. F. A. Kellifor, coroner and a jury of six.

Kwasnik's identification which remained unknown for 12 hours after his death was disclosed by tell tale finger prints on file in the city police bureau of identification. Detectives printed the fingers of the bullet burglar's set as they lay in the morgue and a routine check of the green colored classification, second story men and store prowlers, brought to light the victim's life of crime under a series of aliases.

FROM WINNIPEG

Out of Manitoba's Stony Mountain "pen" only a few weeks, from a seven-year stretch, the burglar came here from Winnipeg.

It was back in 1923 that Kwasnik, then an Austrian, born in Vienna in 1905, broke into the local crime limelight when a gun-toting and shop-breaking career brought him a three-year rap.

On his pockets police found a torn section of the Manitoba Free Press, the first clue to his identification and pass keys to Yale locks. He carried the keys for a local creamery that was entered and robbed over the week-end.

MILES MAIN WITNESS

Miles, who surprised the night marauder as he was plundering a South Side grocery and confectionery store and fired three shots to stop the fugitive, before the gun was accidentally fired in a scrap for its possession, will be the main eyewitness. Chris Shaw, detective in charge of the identification files, will be another, and Chief of Detectives Sutherland, who recovered the heavy screw driver with which Kwasnik tried to clog Miles, will be the last police witness.

Medical experts will round out the enquiry.

ROLLER SKATES FROM TORONTO TO VANCOUVER

RED CHEVRONS HEAR TALK ON OLD COUNTRY

C.Q.M.S. David Collister Speaker at Monthly Meeting of Club

That there are definite signs of business and industrial revival in the Old Country, and that the outlook generally is one of cheerful optimism, was the encouraging assertion made by C.Q.M.S. David Collister to the Red Chevron Club at its monthly meeting.

Mr. Collister recently returned to Edmonton after a lengthy stay in the old land, during which period, with Mrs. Collister, he visited many of the larger centres.

NO DEPRESSION TALK

"Nobody talks depression," said the speaker, "and the possibility of war is not thought of. All have set themselves the task of assuring economic recovery, and while many are still on the dole, thousands are returning to work in all fields of activity."

The address was a continuation of a series of talks being given by members at their monthly meetings of the club.

The speaker was present at the opening, by His Majesty King George, of the great Mersey tunnel at Liverpool, and described in interesting manner the pageantry of ceremonies and the tunnel itself, which he considers one of the great engineering feats of modern times.

MEDICAL SERVICES

The speaker was enthusiastic regarding medical services and hospitalization, of which he had personal experience.

He described the beauties of the Isle of Man and other famous holiday resorts, and told of meeting many former Edmontonians while on his travels.

Col. A. C. Gillespie and Fred Mather expressed the feelings of the meeting when they thanked Mr. Collister for his most interesting talk.

A musical program was provided, in which Mr. Henderson sang two solos. Mr. Henderson also acted as secretary, in the absence of Lieut.-Col. Edward Wood, M.M., who was in Calgary attending the annual dinner of the Red Chevron Club in that city. Mr. Wood, A. E. Nightingale, was chairman.

U.S. IS AHEAD IN AVIATION

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—"We in England are far behind America in aviation," Mrs. H. B. Tate, British M.P., said Thursday when she arrived with her husband to make a study of airplane manufacturing and transportation methods. BRUISED GIRL TELLS STORY OF BRUTALITY

Los Angeles Victim Gives Police Describtion of Assailant

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5—Bruised and cut about the face, Irene Willard, 28, staggered into a Los Angeles police station early today with a story of having witnessed the slaying of a girl friend and having been attacked and beaten.

She said she was held prisoner for two days in a Central avenue place, where she was assaulted.

Miss Willard insisted she saw her friend's throat slashed by a negro and the latter wrapped in sheets. She named the supposed murder victim as Gladys Seeley, 23, Hollywood.

The young woman told police that late last night the negroes bundled the body of her friend into the rear of an old automobile, forced her into the front seat and started to drive toward the beach.

"I jumped out of the car and escaped," she told officers. "I ran as fast as I could."

Police began checking her story.

HEAVY WIND BRINGS RAIN

Whipping up out of the northwest at 6:20 p.m. Thursday, a whistling, 20-mile wind brought brief rain from 9:45 to 10 p.m.

Blowing throughout the night, the wind reached an occasional velocity of 24 miles an hour and prevailed at a stiff clip all Friday morning. The short but heavy rain registered .02 inches precipitation.

With yesterday's clouds cleared by the night's driving wind, skies were clear today with bright weather forecast for tomorrow.

Highest temperature Thursday was 62 degrees, lowest today 44 at 6 a.m., rising to 57 at 2 p.m. The morning barometer reading was 27.91 up.

DELAY ON LOWER COTTON TARIFFS REASON FOR BAN

Delay in Antipodes Due to Change of Government Power Following Elections.

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 5 — Impatient over the delay in adjustment of the new Australian tariff duties on Lancashire cottons, the Lancashire grocers Thursday decided to institute their long-threatened boycott of Australian produce.

This was forecast shortly after the Australian budget some weeks ago but deferred in view of the Australian general elections held two weeks ago. Since then Australian leaders have been compelled to institute negotiations for a coalition ministry, the government party having lost its independent majority, and in view of the uncertainty no action has been taken on tariffs.

But the retail grocers' organization ordered the boycott to go into effect today. J. Gregory, president of the northern council of grocers, said that how best to put it into effect today "is a task for individual grocers." "But I advise my fellow tradesmen to buy New Zealand products."

SHIP FEARED OFF LABRADOR

HALIFAX, Oct. 5—Racing in from the seas, the British freighter Westgard began a search off the coast of Labrador Thursday for the missing freighter Millpool, unreported since her last foul distress calls sparked into the air almost 48 hours ago and disabled in a terrific storm between Danzig and Akmetaal.

Flying his own Puss-Moth plane piloted by Cushing, lawyer of Montreal, landed here Wednesday afternoon from Vancouver. He came via the Grand Forks route in eleven hours, and is returning from a cross-country trip started September 14. No difficulties had been encountered on the entire trip.

With favorable weather, upon Edmonton's airport facilities Mr. Cushing said it compared well with many of America's leading airports. He was with the R.A.F. during the war, being shot down and made a German prisoner. He is one of the original members of the first organized chapter of Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, and will remain in the city a day or two before proceeding east.

ACCUSED SAYS GIRL HIT HER HEAD ON BOAT

Boy in American Tragedy Trial Explains Mark On Skull

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 5—The first witness in his own defence, Robert Allen Edwards took the stand late Thursday to deny he had slain Freda McKechnie, his neighborhood sweetheart, and to set up a claim that she was killed accidentally by falling against a boat.

Questioned by Frank McGuigan, chief defence counsel, he told of the swimming party at Harvey's Lake where the state accuses the 21-year-old mine surveyor of slaying Freda as he might marry another girl.

"She climbed into a boat and I saw her fall," Edwards testified. "I ran to her. There wasn't any heart beat. A bump on the head was dead.

"I thought if there were some marks on her I would not be likely to be accused. I lifted her body out of the boat. I struck it on the head with the blackjack."

A Man's Car That Women Like to Drive FORD V-8

"I've owned a dozen cars in my time and some of them cost a great deal of money. But none of them could match this Ford V-8.

"I tell you — it's perfectly amazing the way this car travels. I couldn't believe it myself until I tried it — had no idea that the V-8 engine would make such a difference. It's so smooth you can hardly hear it. And how it can take the hills!

"It's the only car I've ever had that I really enjoy driving. You just can't compare it with any other car, because there is no other car just like it. You see — no other car under $4000 has a V-8 engine. My wife is even more enthusiastic than I am. She likes the lines and upholstery. Says she never really felt safe in any car until she started driving the Ford V-8.

"With all its power, the Ford V-8 is economical to run. Gives me the best gasoline mileage I've ever had, and I haven't spent a cent for repairs.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 5

NOTHING TO SUGGEST

President Roosevelt, it is said, is working on a public works program "which will not tax beer," in hope of freeing the United States from "a permanent army of unemployed."

More shivers for the eid-line economists, who can see danger in the mounting debts and taxes but no danger in the presence of a standing army of idle, hopeless and desperate men, who feel that the world owes them a chance to earn a living, found homes, raise families, and pursue normal lives.

The critics will tell the President what they think of his plans. They will not tell him what he might do in the alternative.

The plans of the President may fail, or they may not. At least he sees the problem to be solved, and the menace that lurks in it.

If buying power is to be distributed through wages, some means will have to be found in Canada—as in the United States—whereby those who need buying power can earn wages at all times. There cannot be any doubt about that. Men in great numbers will not lie down and die quietly just to relieve the community of what is called a "labor surplus." Ways will have to be found to provide them with work, if work is to be the one way in which buying power can be got.

When sufficient work is not offered by the ordinary processes of industry and trade, what other means is there to provide employment save through public works programs? Those who object to such programs should supply the answer.

NOTHING SAID ABOUT GOLD

Shrewd investors who are buying the new issue of Dominion bonds like hot-cakes, know of course what they are buying and what they will get when the time comes to redeem the bonds.

That overwhelming mass of the population who are not buying bonds at present, for reasons not necessary to mention, may not have taken the trouble to read the advertisement setting out the terms and conditions of the issue. Anyone who has failed to do this should do it now, noting in particular how the interest and the principal of the bond money are to be paid.

There isn't a word about gold in the advertisement from one end to the other. Nothing said about paying interest or principal in gold-backed dollars when the due dates arrive; not a word. All that the Government of Canada promises is to pay interest and principal as due "in lawful money of Canada."

"Lawful money of Canada" is of course anything that the parliament of Canada chooses to call money. When the bonds fall due our money may or may not have gold behind it, nobody knows, and the investors have the good sense to not care a whit. They are buying with their eyes open, doing no quibbling about the kind of money they are to get fifteen years hence. Knowing that—whatever may take place and whatever backing it may have or may not have—it will be perfectly good Canadian money, because the parliament of Canada will have authorized it and declared it to be such.

Money is sound if the Government says it is sound, whether or not the paper bill entitles the holder to claim so many grains of gold at the Dominion treasury. Even our "sound" money Government admits that, and accepts the possibility that this debt may be paid in something other than gold, while the investing public have no scruples whatever about lending on those terms.

The age of money superstition is passing in Canada.

STOP TRADING?

Mr. J. L. McFarland said too much wheat had been sold in Canada for future delivery. Most of it had been sold at prices above the corresponding world levels. Prices forthwith dropped, and those who had contracts against the Government might shut up the Winnipeg grain exchange.

The Government may do that, but it likely won't. The thing has been done before, which is one reason it probably will not be done again.

Where wheat is produced wholesale for export there has to be machinery to market it wholesale. The grain exchange is the machinery that has been built up over a long term of years for that purpose. Nobody who knows and cares about facts would claim that it is a perfect piece of mechanism or that it never has been or never could be wrongly used. The exchange is neither fool-proof nor rogue-proof; but it does the work, and nobody has yet conclusively shown that a better one can be devised.

The exchange is open to the world, every lawful business day in the year. Anyone can buy wheat or sell wheat through the exchange any time he chooses, at a price that holds throughout the entire wheat belt, and a price that cannot be kept below the world price, though it has been held above that price by Government backing. Speculation on the exchange cannot for any length of time run the price down below world parity. If enthusiastic speculators run the price above the world level, the farmer gets the benefit.

It may be that the exchange needs more supervision, or more regulating. If so the Dominion Government, which is heavily involved in exchange operations, has both the power and the incentive to make the readjustments. But that it will close the exchange is by no means likely.

If that were done, some body corresponding to the wheat board of war time would have to be put in its place. Premier Bennett remembers that war time wheat board; what it did, and what was said about it. He also knows that the country is not at war just now; and that a machine which may work tolerably when it is a case of selling wheat to governments which have to buy may not work at all when it is a case of selling wheat to individuals scattered all over creation, who do not have to buy.

Poems That Live

CHOICE

'O all the souls that stand create
I have elected one,
When sense from spirit flies away
And subterfuge is done;

When that which is and that which was
Apart, intrinsic, stand,
And this first blood of flesh
Is shifted like a sand;

When figures show their royal front
And mists are carved away—
Behold the one I preferred
To all the lists of clay!

—Emily Dickinson

The scheme for relieving the situation in respect to livestock for which there is insufficient feed seems to have come to a halt, at least temporarily. Unforeseen difficulties seem to have arisen apparently in the division of cost as between the governments concerned. There are a number of costs to be absorbed. Freight rates reduction for the scheme will be taken up by the federal authorities but reaching an agreement as to the respective shares of costs on processing is difficult. Apparently Ottawa will assume no responsibility on this point and the negotiations with the processing firms are consequently held up.—Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

J. S. Cowper

I've been watching thousands of earnest young students enrol for night classes for the winter season, in subjects as remote as Poultry Husbandry, Cooking, Dressmaking, Music, Public Speaking, Commercial Subjects, Wireless Telegraphy, Current Events and Economics, to Short Story Writing, Academic and Technical Courses. Hundreds of Russians, Germans, Scandinavians, Chinese and Japanese were enrolling to learn "English for New Canadians." A score of deaf persons were enrolling to learn the art of lip-reading.

Having a personal interest in mechanical subjects, I looked into the course in Diesel engineering and found it covered practical shop work in assembly, running clearances, fitting tolerances, alignment of pistons, rods, shaft and cylinder bores, timing of valves and pumps, cutting of gaskets, making of joints, scraping of bearings, running repairs, reseating valves, engine tests, efficiencies and trouble shooting, in addition to a vast amount of theoretical instruction.

There's nothing wrong with a young manhood and young womanhood prepared to spend its winter evenings in studying household arts, commercial methods and technical skills in a hundred different subjects. The only thing that's wrong is the organization of our economic-financial life which heaps up surpluses of goods, curtails purchasing power, makes unemployment a necessary condition of normal prosperity and has no work for these trained and ambitious youngsters to try their skill in.

The night school enrolment is not the only sign of interest in education. At the same time, and only three miles or so away, students were gathering for higher education in the University. I'm not clear about what constitutes height in education. The only difference I could see between the night school enrolment and the young ladies and gentlemen at the University is in their different approach to knowledge. While the night school students go quietly into classrooms and make acquaintances, the young sadists at the University compel the freshmen and freshettes to submit to indignities.

At one time the young seekers after knowledge at this particular University were ducked in a pond by those who had received the benefits of higher education. After being ducked they were smeared with flour, soot and paint. If they objected to the treatment they were beaten about the body. At the end of the sadist ceremonies, those who were in possession of the benefits of the higher education used to hold a hooligan's parade through the town. With blackened and ochred faces and bodies, and with wild yells they would overturn autos, smash windows, raid theatres and assault peaceful citizens.

It took hard times and curtailed appropriations to free the citizenry from the menace of the higher education. Now, with reduced appropriations for educational benefits, these disciples of the higher learning have to be content to vindicate the higher learning upon the beginners by compelling the freshmen and freshettes to wear odd stockings for two weeks under threat of physical violence, wear ridiculous-looking caps and carry placards on their backs bearing their names. Fighting is restricted to the freshmen and the upper classmen.

One wonders why Gordon Sinclair goes all the way to Africa to seek material for stories of weird rites and barbaric initiations when youths are driven insane in our own halls of learning by their sadist brothers.

Nudism is "verboten" in Germany under Hitler, but is growing in other countries. This Column recently told of a nudist colony on Vancouver Island. My colleague, Mr. D. C. Jenkins of the Edmonton Bulletin had a peep at one while travelling across United States recently from Chicago to San Francisco, and a correspondent furnishes particulars of a new one in Dorsetshire in England.

There are about 120 members of the Dorset "Garden of Eden" composed of about 60 men of the professional classes—doctors, bank managers and stock brokers—with 40 of their womenfolk and about 20 children. They have an old country house with about three acres of ground containing a swimming pool and tennis courts. It is hidden by dense thicket through which barbed wire has been strung. The lower limbs of surrounding trees have been lopped off to prevent curious peepers from climbing them. Chalets and tents inside the grounds are rented to families.

A curious circumstance about the colony is that while visitors must entirely disrobe to gain admission, the club servants are required to be fully clothed.

Carlyle in his "Sartor Resartus" writes of the function of clothes to give a false dignity to man. He illustrates his point by the well-known passage in which he pictures a naked Duke of Windlestraw, looking like a forked radish, addressing a House of Lords, looking like forked radishes.

It is said that the nudist members object to being waited upon by nude servants. It's probably because they miss the sense of dignity with which they are accustomed to address the servant class. A nudist colony outside Paris achieved the height of dignity by requiring all members to appear in evening dress for dinner.

If the time comes for nudist colonies to be established in Canada, Alberta will be able to exploit its fame as "sunny Alberta".

It would be interesting to get the reaction of a Confucian Chinese on the nudist colonies in the Christian nations. Nudism is a very shocking thing to the Oriental mind—except for the depraved classes.

In Shanghai, a purity campaign is in vogue, aroused by women bobbing their hair. The Magistrate's Office has recently issued a set of rules regulating women's dress. Walking in the streets in pyjamas and slippers is forbidden; bare legs and feet are prohibited and trousers must not be shorter than four inches below the knee. The police are empowered to arrest women on right whose dress does not comply to these requirements.

Instead of a sinkhole of iniquity, Shanghai might qualify as the puritans dream city, with women in plus fours and their bodies completely hidden. It takes a clean mind to contemplate nudity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. Lena DeP. inquires: "How may one distinguish the difference between bronchitis and laryngitis?"

ANSWER: Both symptoms are very similar in some ways, but with bronchitis there is usually a whistling sound heard during breathing, and more mucus is coughed up. In laryngitis the inflammation is mostly in the throat and may or may not be accompanied with mucus. Laryngitis may interfere with the speech because the vocal cords may be involved with any inflammation of the larynx. Any doctor can tell you the difference in a minute's diagnosis.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

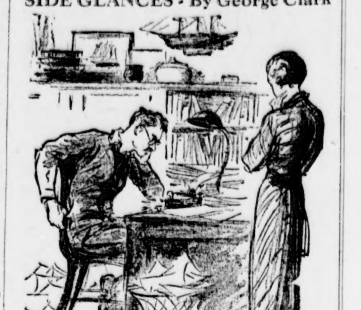
On this October 6, be careful that in trying to oblige a friend, you do not jeopardize your personal interests. If through a desire to please one person, you find yourself giving offense to another, there is a very good possibility that the only one to lose out eventually will be yourself. It might prove advisable to be very cautious of strangers on this date, especially if there is an exchanging of money taking place. You may be placed in a position where you will be given the opportunity of greatly increasing your popularity by seizing the chance of doing a kindly act. Some friends may find it an enjoyable pastime to tear to pieces the character and reputation of a reputation. You can display excellent judgment if you refrain from joining in this malicious form of gossip, which may reach the victim's ears. If invited to a social affair, you may earn your host's gratitude if you will put yourself out trying to co-operate in helping to keep the other guests entertained and being agreeable to everyone. Married and engaged couples, as well as those seeking same will find their sweethearts very obliging. Both will have a more harmonious day if they will refrain from trying to force their adored one to express an opinion on any subject that they may display a reluctance to express themselves on.

If a woman and October 6 is your natal day, you may greatly advance your interests if you are a little more inclined to take the initiative. Love may help you find a solution to all your problems. Marriage is the logical life for you.

The child born on October 6 usually, when it reaches its teens has a remarkable ability for self-expression. It should possess very logical and sound reasoning powers.

If a man and October 6 is your birthday, you may be inclined to defer too much to the wishes of others. Be aggressive, regardless of what others may counsel, when you feel it is right that you should be. If you will develop your own personality and impress it on those with whom you come into contact, you may surprise yourself with your accomplishments. If you marry, you may find it advantageous to discuss your problems, as well as your successes, with your wife. More marriages are wrecked on the rocks of secretiveness than anything else. So if you are wise, steer your matrimonial bark clear of this destructive obstacle.

SIDE GLANCES - By George Clark



"I've rewritten this chapter twenty-three times, and it still reads as if I had labored on it."

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date, in 1731, Hocquart, the Intendant, at Quebec urged the creation of a fireproof building for the preservation of the archives of the country which had already begun to accumulate and were in danger of destruction by fire or careless handling.

The first historians of Canada were the Jesuits. Immediately after the arrival of the first priests of the order in 1625, the writing of the Relations, the very foundation of our history, began. Each missionary wrote his daily record of happenings. These were sent to France and published in Paris by the provincial of the order. They are invaluable as a record of the conditions in Canada in the 17th and 18th centuries and have been used by many writers as sources beyond dispute. Parkman took much of his material from the Jesuit Relations.

Hocquart's advice was not taken. As the country grew the records grew, but there was no strict supervision of them until comparatively recent years. Some of the governors and governments saw that the archives were preserved, but it was not until the beginning of the present century that fireproof buildings were provided at Ottawa, Quebec and Halifax for the care of the archives.

In Ontario there has been a slight improvement by transfer of the records from a firetrap in the old building to the new wing in Queen's Park, Toronto. There is danger that the usefulness of the archives of Upper Canada would be largely lost should their care be entrusted to men enthusiastic, but lacking the knowledge and experience that is needed.

An independent, non-political commission, to see to it not only that the records now in Toronto are catalogued and arranged as they should be, but that the papers of Upper Canada, taken by the province of Canada in 1841 and then kept by the Dominion, should be restored to Ontario is required, and a systematized plan adopted by which the papers of the various provincial societies and the hundreds of priceless records in private families be secured and preserved.

CIVIC TAXATION

Editor Bulletin: In a report to the Labor meeting a few days ago, Mr. Roper has seen fit to attack some of the ideas and some of the leaders of the taxpayers' and the Civic Government Association. The terms he used, I believe, were "ignorant, or worse, that of being guilty of wilful misrepresentation for their personal benefit." These are harsh terms and were it not the second time he has made similar statements in his report, I might say it was just temporary loss of control and on that ground might be overlooked. He further stated, I believe, that the leaders to a large extent were not taxpayers and especially mentioned myself as one of these.

I will not call this "ignorance, nor wilful misrepresentation" on his part but only a slight misunderstanding, and therefore a misstatement of the facts, since coming to this city in 1920 I have never had less than $400 taxes per annum to pay to the city. Sometime I was able to pay them so as to get the discount and at all other times I was unable to pay them until long over due. Last year I only paid some $500 in account, and this year I have not yet been able to pay these taxes.

Possibly I was unfortunate or unwise in my investments. I invested what little capital I had in farm lands and city property. High taxes and low rents have hit the city property low prices, bad weather frosts and snow have hit the farm lands.

Mr. Roper invested his time and money. I am informed, in a printing press. For several years the sunshine of contracts of $30,-000 and more yearly, from the taxpayers through the provincial government and contracts of $18,000 and more to his company from the taxpayers through the city council, has beamed upon him. It is therefore, not surprising that he should be perturbed by the threat of "frosts and snow" to his annual crop in the form of taxpayers' strike, or the election to council of taxpayers on a platform of a lessened burden on the property owners.

In his report a further statement was given to show that of the 64 mills, approximately 35 mills go to debenture charges and school costs, leaving the impression that only nine mills was used for administration and other purposes. Did he forget that there are over $5,000,000 being spent besides what is raised by the 64 mill rate and that possibly a few mills might be saved from this amount? Did he forget that there are over 60,000 others besides the burdens among whom might be found a few better able and more entitled to contribute something to the upkeep of the several services and other expenditure of the city than the overtaxed property owners.

I am not a taxpayer because I believe that they are paying more than their share. They believe that a council, with socialistic ideas who do not believe in the right of a citizen to private ownership of his own home or business, does not represent the ideas of the taxpayers and will not work in their interests. They believe that those who have invested their money and years of labor in building up the city and its taxpayers, are to equal consideration with those who came later. The taxpaying public, we believe, have lost faith in the present council and there is every reason to believe that if they had a council in whom they had confidence and were assured of a lower taxation rate and were thereby assured of being allowed to continue to own their own homes, they would pay more into the city on a 50 mill rate than they do at present under the higher mill rate.

URGES APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY

Editor Bulletin: Regarding the poor woman who is to be hanged for the murder of her husband.

I have no fault to find with judge or jury, but I have a fault to find with the women of this country if they do not write to Hon. Hugh Guthrie and ask him to reduce the sentence to life imprisonment.

And I place the blame on relief officials in pinching relief till a man is afraid to ask for it. There are many cases in the north where timid men are afraid to ask for their rights from the relief officials and the women at home must look down an empty flour barrel.

It is about time some one spoke out in meeting about those abuses, instead of yelling for parties.

Any one knows that this poor woman was driven to the act by poverty and sickness, and the pinching of relief is the cause.

To think that a woman must hang for the acts of others is horrible, and it is the women's place to "kick" by writing Ottawa to reduce the term of life imprisonment. In many cases it is better than being on the out side; where you are well fed and your health looked after.

THE MOUNTAIN ASH

Editor Bulletin: In your issue of the 24th inst. I note where Mr. Archie Rendall found a mountain ash in the wilds near Seba and he claimed to be the farthest north that they grow wild.

I found one at Milsue Lake on the Nor-bern Alberta Railway. This is the northern border of the Slave Lake forestry reserve, 19 townships north of Seba.

I am raising more from the seed of the one I found. They grow strong in these parts.

Sophie Kerr's Great Novel

"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When HOWARD JACKSON young geology professor, comes to Marburg JANE TERRY, the prettiest girl in town, determines to win his heart. Howard, however, falls in love with AMY LOWE, Jane's best friend. Jane, angered, tries to force Howard into an engagement and, when she fails, leaves for New York, declaring she never returns.

Amy and Howard set the date of their wedding in June.

In New York Jane "enrolls in a business school and later becomes secretary to the president of the Randel Real Estate company. She meets ROGER THORPE, head of the rental department.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

"NOW there's a smart chap," said Mr. Kandel after Roger Thorpe had left them. "You heard him —something queer comes up and he gets right out and takes hold himself, doesn't leave it to his assistants. He might have sent one of the boys who'd have balled it all up and got us a lot of bad publicity."

Jane nodded gravely. This place suited her exactly. As soon as Mr. Kandel had finished the grist of letters she went to her desk and looked it through. Good supplies, plenty of them, an almost new machine, a comfortable chair, the desk itself large and expensive—and of course to be compared to Mr. Kandel's magnificent walnut and plate glass bulwark, but a rort of young brother to it.

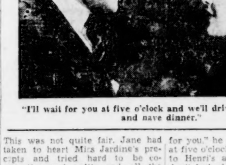
There was a grass cloth on the walls very much finer than that in Miss Lowe's apartment and the rugs were thick and colorful. Easy chairs, presumably for wealthy clients, were upholstered in dull red leather. Framed photographs and architects' drawings of Kandel properties hung here and there, and over the fireplace. "I imagine a real fireplace," thought Jane, "with a real coal fire!" There was a group of prints of old New York. Dark curtains of raw silk dyed red to match the chairs heightened the warmth of the place.

Jane's dark slimness, her black frock and red beads were quite in the picture, and she knew that as it eat knows its beauty against a satin cushion. But she wasted no time on effect. She was too intent on getting the letters typed and making them look smart. When she had done a couple she brought them to Mr. Kandel. "Do you like that style?" she asked. "Would you prefer less margin, or a double space throughout?" "They look all right to me," said Mr. Kandel. Jane was disappointed. She had hoped for more approval. The truth was that Mr. Kandel had begun to re-value his precipitancy. The girl might be efficient, but she was much too young and too pretty, and she had outsmarted him on salary. Likely, too, Mrs. Kandel wouldn't be pleased when she found the service of Miss Jane typed on swiftly. Mr. Kandel made up his mind that at the first reasonable excuse he'd ease her out, but even so he admitted that he did like the way she took hold, without any fuss or affectation. "She acts like business, but she sure doesn't look it," he thought. "Oh, well, we'll see. I'll know a lot more about her at the end of a week."

At the end of the week Mr. Kandel had forgotten his intention to ease Jane out. Three things had proved her value to him, her capacity for work, her deliberate and delicate know-handling of a contractor who had come to the Kandel office intent on having a row with the head of the firm (Mr. Kandel had listened to this from his guest sanctum) and finally, but not least important, the verdict of Mrs. Kandel, who one day clanked her diamond bracelets into the room, looked Jane over from head to feet, talked with her a few minutes and told her husband later, "That girl's all right. She's got class."

Jane had not the slightest idea that she was under observation, or that there was any question of her permanence. The place suited her and that had settled it in her own mind. It was all the better to have to do more work. She couldn't agonize over Amy and Howard Jackson, when the mysteries of contracts, leases and mortgages, plot-books and appraisals and building costs were waiting to be absorbed. She was secretly surprised by her ignorance, it seemed odd that such a large field of important subjects should somehow have been entirely omitted from her education. Time and time again doubted her ability to ever know it all, but these doubts were not serious. She studied much harder than she had studied at the school, and learned one invaluable thing—how and where to look for information when she needed it. This acquired, she began to realize that she couldn't possibly know everything about the business by study alone. She would need time and much experience, and even then there might be a few items left to be attained. The long auditioned effort began to wake down her vitality. It was spring and she was tired and restless. She wanted a change but couldn't define the kind, hadn't the energy to seek it.

By the Kandel office it was conceded from her first appearance that the bosses' new secretary was a peach for Jane has a lemon disposition and there was no use trying to get next to her or put anything over on her. Also that she wasn't even obviously friendly.



"I'll wait for you at five o'clock and we'll drive down to Henri's and have dinner."

This was not quite fair. Jane had taken to heart Mrs. Jardine's precept and tried hard to be cooperative and polite and all the rest of polite office behavior. But it was too superficial to deceive her fellow-workers. They left her alone unless they had business in her province. Even Allen Calvert, who looked after the Kandel special development projects and who was large, loud and happy with a laugh and a jollying joking way which got him out of many a bad spot with the Board of Estimate and Bureau of Inspection, even Allen was cautious when he approached Jane. Only Roger Thorpe, whom she had met on her first day with Kandel, tried to keep a little warmer current going between them, because in the realm of office intrigue it would be to his advantage to have Kandel's secretary on his side.

There was a pretty definite, though concealed rivalry between himself and Calvert, which Kandel used calculatingly, keeping both men uncertain as to which he favored, and therefore always extra active to please him. Roger Thorpe was calculating, too. Jane could if she would, give him news of Kandel's moves and changes available through no other channel. But Jane had not bothered to respond to Thorpe's small attentions, and he was astute enough not to press them. He could play a long game with admirable patience.

He was rewarded by being the one to come in to Kandel's office and find Jane alone, idly standing by the window, her shining young-ness drooping and face sharp with suppressed tears. At sight of Thorpe she shrugged herself straight with an effort: "Can I do something for you?" Mr. Kandel won't be in until four."

"But what's the matter—you look sick?"

Jane's defense was down for a moment before his kindness. "I don't know what's the matter exactly. I'm sort of—stopped! I was standing here wondering what it's all about, why we're alive, and why we go on living. I'm so tired of everything, tired of myself, tired of—"

"You've got spring fever, that's what it is. Maybe your family's got on your nerves."

"My family, what there is of them, lives miles from here."

"Then maybe you're homesick."

"That's the last thing I'm likely to be. I care nothing about my family and they care nothing about me. I'm the most alone person in the world. Usually I don't mind. But today—I don't know. I felt it."

"Good Lord, I should think you would. Where do you live—with friends?"

"No, in a hotel, and I hate it. I haven't had time for people since I came. There was the school first and then here there's so much to get hold of."

Thorpe began to re-value Jane. She wasn't just the boss's secretary and a possible scout for his interests. She was an extraordinarily handsome young woman who for the first time was letting him see behind the mask of efficiency and competence which she ordinarily wore. And she was lonely and unhappy and appealing, all of which made him feel large and protecting. "I'm going to prescribe for you," he said. "I'll wait for you at five o'clock and we'll drive down to Henri's and have dinner. Now don't look doubtful. It's all settled. You and I must get acquainted." Then Thorpe himself had a moment of doubt. "I forgot, I have a little errand for the boss right after five. I'll call for you at your hotel at half-past. Where is it?" That would prevent any office gossipers from getting them start off. He certainly didn't want Calvert to know that he'd struck up a friendship with Jane.

She kept him waiting a little that evening, for she had stopped on her way home to buy a new hat and that tonic act and the excitement of deciding on it with the good-looking, agreeable Thorpe turned her dull mood into one so changed and gay that Thorpe stared when he saw her. "And pretty darned clever of me to pick her out," he thought complacently, "even if she doesn't help me a bit with the boss."

"That seems a good little hotel," he began as they started off, "even if you are tired of it. I've often heard of it as a well-run, quiet residential place, but I've never actually been in it before."

"It was an apartment for my own," said Jane. "I've never had time to hunt one, and my aunt and cousin people I don't think it's frightful for me to live alone. But good heavens, why not? Women who earn their own money certainly ought to live as they like."

"Ought to! They do! Packs of 'em. What amazes me is that you say you want an apartment, and you're in the Kandel organization, and this is the first word that the head of Kendal's Rental and Management has heard of it."

"You—why of course, the very first day I was in the office Mr. Kandel said if I wanted an apartment to come to you—"

"It still holds good. And look here, I know the very place, two nice rooms and a bath and a real honest-to-God kitchen in a made-over house on Bloor Street, the very latest thing. Third floor and no elevator, but that makes it better."

"How do you mean, that makes it better?"

"No elevator boy checking up on your callers, I'm joking, of course, about that, but all the same it is agreeable to be free to entertain if you do isn't being spied on and talked about, as it is in a small town."

"But that's what I hate about small towns! I'd like to see that apartment. Unless it costs a great deal—"

Thorpe had a point to make: "The office is like a small town, too, you know. Everyone looking and commenting, little cliques forming, some people trying to get Mr. Kandel's ear to boost themselves—it's all wrong, it ought to be—"

"All for one and one for all, like the Three Musketeers." She glanced up, smiling, provocative, ready.

"I can't imagine why we're talking office shop," said Thorpe, returning the glance. "I want to know something about you, yourself, how come you're so awfully clever—and so awfully pretty? They don't usually team up, you know."

REFUND LOAN IS HALF SOLD RHODES GLAD

Cash Applications Show Increases Through West Thursday

OTTAWA, Oct. 5—The half way mark had been passed with a preliminary total of $128,750,000 in subscriptions to the new $250,000,000 Dominion refunding loan, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance, announced last night. The issue went on the market Monday morning.

Assistant receiver-general offices outside of Montreal and Toronto were beginning to show up much better, stated the minister. Thrift was particularly the case in the west where a substantial increase in the number of cash applications was recorded Thursday.

Special gratification at the increase in conversion subscriptions, which were more than double the volume received the day before was expressed by the minister. This may have been due in part to the special appeal to convert Victory bonds issued earlier Thursday, but probably was indicative of the momentum which the campaign was acquiring. After Saturday bonds can only be turned in for conversion at par.

Inter-faculty track meet will be held in the university stadium Saturday next. Commencing at 9:30 a.m. there will be a lull during the glamour and tradition of old England. Someone in the audience expressed the hope that someday she might have a chestnut picked right in the garden. The idea of planting it in her own very lovely grounds.

This summer, an Edmonton traveller abroad betrought herself of the simple request, and hied her to the nearest park. She found a chestnut. Unfortunately, all those from the ground had already been picked up and the lower branches of the trees were out away. Undaunted she borrowed an umbrella and by dint of jumping and hooking she brought three of the precious treasures to the ground.

So chestnut trees from Hampton Court may yet grow in Edmonton.

Direct Course of "Gateway"

DOUGLAS McDERMID

JACK TUCK

The Gateway, the University of Alberta paper, is headed this year by Douglas McDermid as editor and Jack Tuck as business manager. Active always as an organ of expression for the students, the campus paper has been edited by the students themselves since the inception of the institution.

The Gateway may be said to reflect the calibre of the university, for at all times contributions from every grade of student life are solicited and welcomed.

In the columns of the Gateway every major event is recorded. The meetings of the various societies, literary and otherwise, are reproduced for the benefit of the student body. The editorial page, as is the editorial page of every paper, is the heart of the paper. A successful editor endeavors to give the paper a personality by the application of logical thinking, constructive criticism and of worth-while content.

The Sport page holds the interest of all students, men and women, alike. It is alive with snappy comments and accounts of games, pictures of players in action, and articles relating to sport for all fans. The general columns are, from a woman's standpoint, the most interesting part of the paper. Book reviews, little chats about music, and poetry make this page of interest.

Social - Personal

THE COLUMNS of this page are devoted in so far as they touch sport at all, to the gentlemen of golf, tennis and badminton; and then they deal more particularly with the social side of what is, after all, or loss friendly pastimes. To date, we have stayed completely of the rugby field, and except for a stray glance at the kind of autumn suits the gay young things are wearing on the sidelines, we have yet to write a social story about rugby. However, we simply couldn't pass up the little tale we have heard of late about the trials and difficulties of the young would-be rugby players who are still in high school circles. For instance, at one leading high school, a very likely young athlete found to his dismay that "weighing in" regulations left him definitely short of seven pounds.

He had one day in which to make the grade. No woman in the first flush of the fattening forties ever went on a more strenuous exercise and diet campaign than did the youth that day. Rising early, he ran breakfastless to school, panting and perspiring under the weight of his extra sweaters. Then, equipped with a hard track work-out, with six lunch. At four o'clock he went back to be weighed. And was still three-quarters of a pound short. Another half hour of track did the trick and he made the team.

The sad sequel is, however, that when he went out to play that evening, he was hardly a very effective player. He seemed to be "crumpled up" under the stress and strain of the game. All is well that ends well, so we hear.

Another boy of whom we heard was five pounds overweight, and ran around the field until he fell off the extra avoirdupois. This news we received, frankly, in ignorance as to the observation of a group of young high school girls. Sadly enough, however, this boy didn't make the team because he had no uniform (so the story went). "If you don't think it's worth a little effort to make the team at high school . . . just sit down behind a group of proud young girls in almost any street car these days!

Perhaps you've never yearned and yearned for years and years to be chosen for the team of girls from Hampton Court Gardens. If you haven't it just goes to show that you've never played the glamour and tradition of old England. Someone in the audience expressed the hope that someday she might have a chestnut picked right in the garden. The idea of planting it in her own very lovely grounds.

EQUALITY CODE HAPPINESS AID

Dear Miss Dix—Here is our story: I—Late twenties. Good education. Excellent family background. Much interested in my work, though earning small salary at present. Sense of humor. No illusions, but plenty of ideals. Realize that work and sacrifice are necessary ingredients in marriage. Willing to toil, provided the wife-to-be compensates with understanding love. She—Combination of intelligence. Sense of humor. Attractive physical appearance. Tolerance. Good health Constant good spirits. What a woman! Mutual—Deep, mature love for each other. Similar tastes and outlook on life. Ability to live happily with a minimum of creature comforts. Only drawback—I would want my wife to be all mine. To give herself utterly to me. This woman is proud. So much herself that I wonder how much she is mine. I don't think I am particularly possessive, but a man's natural conceit seems to demand that a woman be submissive to him, while she is inclined to depend too much on her family teachings or conventional attitudes. How about it? LUCKY.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

If you mean about marrying the girl, I should say go to it, and may Heaven bless you, my children. It seems to me that you have come as near to finding the ideal wife as a man ever does, and that your prospective marriage has in it all of the ingredients for success. Even the faults that you find in this paragon than to virtue's side, and after you have been married for a few years, you will realize that the characteristics you feared in her are the very ones that have done most to make your marriage a success.

What's What

Question—I am to have an informal church wedding at 4 o'clock. Would it be correct to have a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, a best man, two flower girls and a ring-bearer? Are ushers necessary at an informal wedding? I plan to wear a blue satin gown with a little white satin hat, white gloves and white pumps. How should the flower girls and ring-bearer (girl) dress? In what colors? Would navy blue business suits be correct for the groom and groomsman? How should the invitations be sent out, since some will go to parts of Canada, California, Florida and Texas. B.

Answer—Flower girls and ring-bearer appear only at a very formal wedding. Costumes described for yourself and the men correct for an informal wedding, concerning which you will find detailed in my leaflet, "Wedding Etiquette," sent on receipt of a self-addressed, long envelope, stamped with 3-cent postage. Invitations should be mailed two or three weeks in advance of the wedding. There should be at least two ushers.

Question—When a man and wife call on another married couple who are not at home, how many calling cards should be left? When there are children from 14 to 18, how many cards should be left? Should cards be left for male children as well as female children? Should the husband and wife each leave one of their cards for each of the children? When the people on whom you are calling are at home, should calling cards be left with them?

Answer—Of late, card etiquette has become greatly simplified. Two callers each leave a card. Cards are not left for minor sons and daughters. Received visitors seldom leave cards.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—Prevent Cutting—No Knives

When sore and painful Piles distress and upset you, and salves give insufficient or only temporary relief, and wish is to avoid operation; isn't it best to at once try HEM-ROID, the internal remedy for piles?

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was convinced early in his career that the cause of Piles was internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowels—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood —and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find a remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefiting by Dr. Leonhardt's internal treatment so why doubt or delay longer when Merrick Drug Stores and other good druggists say: "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe clean way to get rid of your pile misery or money-back."

Proper Functioning of the Body Best Aid to Women's Loveliness

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

The famous Lucrezia Borgia, historians tell us, had a most unsanitary way of disposing of the people she didn't like. Lucrezia, it seems, would invite her enemies to be her guests at a banquet. And with true hospitality, she would gracefully dump a generous amount of deadly poison in their wine. As you can well imagine, Lucrezia's banquets really weren't very popular.

Today, of course, folks don't go around poisoning people wholesale. But a famous scientist claims that many people die of poisons long before their time. Not poisons administered by others, but poisons that they create in their own systems. Slow poisons that may take years to actually kill them, but that make them seem ugly and old, instead of keeping them young and beautiful.

The way to keep the body free of such poisons is surprisingly simple. It lies principally in keeping the excretory system functioning freely and efficiently. For it is when the excretory system does not function properly, and wastes are permitted to accumulate in the body, that poisons generally are created.

Evacuation, however, is a normal function of the body, and no normally healthy woman should find it difficult to keep her excretory system functioning efficiently. It is really mainly a matter of maintaining a proper food diet, a diet that will keep the intestines free from wastes. But one of the simplest and most effective ways of promoting intestinal hygiene is through the use of the saline solution.

The saline solution is merely a solution of ordinary, common table salt. This solution, when properly taken, constitutes a sort of internal bath, as it rushes through the stomach and intestines and washes them out. To follow the routine properly, the solution should be prepared by dissolving two teaspoons of common salt in a quart of tepid water. Then three or four glasses of the solution should always be taken before—not after—breakfast. For at this time everything of value has been already secured from the foods eaten on the previous day.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES
Reducing Lotion

Ellen: The reducing lotion made by dissolving two squares of gum-med camphor in eight ounces of rubbing alcohol should be patted on the thighs several times a day and allowed to dry. A bit of gold cream should be applied afterward, to keep the skin soft.

Buttermilk

Marie: Buttermilk really isn't fattening, and you may consume as many as two quarts of it a day, if you so desire.

DAILY TRUE STORY

TWO KINDS OF 'HOT-FOOT'

By Judson Stuart

Kirk Talmadge drove his rather ancient vintage car slowly along West Boulevard, looking for number 361. The houses on this attractive suburban street were somewhat imposing and far apart. In Kirk's pocket was a folded Morning Globe-Star which contained his classified resume.

TUTOR—Higher branches, student of twenty. Live on premises. Apply in person, Grisomb, No. 361 West Boulevard, Beechwold.

Kirk hoped that he would land this. It would take him through the summer comfortably, he believed, without the necessity of digging into his rainy-day funds.

Number 361 on one of a pair of limestone driveway posts caught his eye. It was a solid, comfortable appearing house with extensive grounds in such splendid condition that it betokened a financial ability to keep one or more skilled gardeners. Kirk steered his antiquated car into the driveway and went crunching up over the white pebbles.

A man-servant answered his ring. "I came to see about the tutoring," Kirk said as he handed the man his card.

Kirk was ushered into the library. In a few minutes a young lady appeared. She was one of those types—not exactly beautiful but possessed of grace and a charming personality. If she had been for a slight cloud of worry in her eyes she would have been even more charming.

"Er—Mrs. Griscomb?" Kirk said, arising. Then he smiled and shook his head. "Of course not," he said.

Barbara Griscomb smiled at this for she understood what he meant. She couldn't possibly be the mother of a 20-year-old client. Kirk made Kirk take a second look at her and he thought, "Stunner—gorgeous girl."

"My brother is the student who needs tutoring," she glanced at the card. "Mr. Talmadge. That is, he is my half-brother."

Kirk set down to talk. Kirk presented certain credentials, enumerated some references, two of whom Barbara knew and approved.

"Is the young man a student by desire, or request?" Kirk asked. "It makes so much difference and helps in the approach to the task, if I get it."

Barbara sighed. She was taking stock of this attractive young man. She guessed that he was nearly 30, which was three years too much. She liked his mildness of manner but was afraid that he might be too mild. A firmness in Kirk's chin, with its deep cleft, reassured her a trifle.

Basil did the old hot-foot trick.

"I would like to have you make the attempt, Mr. Talmadge," Barbara said, "but I must be fair with you. It will not be a pleasant task. Basil is unmanageable. Only one thing in the world makes him want to finish his course at Harbindale."

"A junior college with a high rating," said Kirk.

"There is an amount of money coming to him from an Uncle if he is graduated from Harbindale, as this uncle is a graduate and a generous donor."

Kirk nodded, understandingly.

"Bill Basil is rather terrible. He is arrogant in places too high a rating on his importance and, unless you are a veritable well-spring of patience and tact, you will pack up and leave after the first week or so."

She discussed the terms. Kirk wanted to stay more than ever then because boys were surprisingly generous terms.

Basil Matthews was introduced. He was cool, even superior in his air and had, to Kirk's regret, all the outward signs of being an insufferable young cad.

But Kirk was pretty much of a diplomat. He made no attempt to like Basil on equal social terms. On the other hand he never demeaned himself or said "Sir." But the very first day Kirk took up a course of modern finance with Basil he did it deliberately. He went into such detail as to what could be done with fifty or a hundred thousand, if properly handled, that Basil was interested. Basil never suspected that Kirk did this solely because he had been warned by Barbara that Basil's only reason for studying was the hundred thousand promised by his uncle. Basil had visions of getting through the little college life, getting the hundred thousand from his uncle, and making it grow into millions, thus becoming a great power, financially and socially.

For more than a month Basil did fairly well. Then he had to let go and show his arrogance. He wouldn't study, he said—they were mean and insulting things to the effect that Kirk was only a form of servant. Anyone with money could hire brains and that he, Basil, would do pretty much as he so-and-so pleased.

Under ordinary circumstances Kirk would have packed up and departed. But these were not ordinary circumstances, for Kirk Talmadge considered Barbara Griscomb to be the most desirable, most beautiful girl that ever existed. He would bear all sorts of tortures rather than go away from her presence.

One day Barbara came to Kirk. "You not only have diplomacy," she said, "but you are the best sport in the world to stand for Basil's caddishness. I hate to say it about my young half-brother, but it is true. I cannot see why you stand for it."

"I have the best of reasons," Kirk assured her.

Barbara's heart gave a little flutter. This attractive Kirk Talmadge was suffering everything in the way of insults, and worse solely to remain where she was. It pleased her so much that she wondered if she was going to fall in love with this mild-mannered tutor. After a couple more weeks Barbara sighed and decided that she couldn't fall in love with Kirk Talmadge because he was altogether too mild mannered. He took too much from the insufferable Basil.

There came a paper for Basil to do on elementary philosophy, not a difficult paper. He brought it down to the cool west terrace and handed it to Kirk with a malicious grin. Barbara was sitting some distance away, reading.

As Kirk read the purposely garbled paper and scowled, Basil did the old "hot-foot" trick. If there be any who do not know it, it consists of sticking a paper match in the sole of someone's shoe, at the side near the toes, and lighting the match. Of a sudden the pain is quite anguish.

Kirk suddenly leaped up with a loud "Ow-w!"

Basil laughed derisively.

Kirk wheeled on him. "There are two kinds of hot-foot, you abominable cad," Kirk said, "this is the other one." He kicked him so hard that Basil fell backward and refused to fight. Kirk slapped him once and then proceeded to kick him vigorously around the terrace and into the house—Barbara followed, holding her breath. Kirk kicked Basil across the library.

"If you dont come down in one hour with a theme paper," Kirk said, "I shall kick you to the post-office and back. I mean it."

The postoffice was two miles away.

Barbara caught Kirk in the library.

"After the hour is up," he said, "and Basil turns in a new paper, I will leave of course."

"Kirk, you darling!" Barbara cried, "you shall never leave, I love you too much!"

Basil sent a better paper down by a servant, in an hour, and Kirk tossed it aside. They had more important matters to discuss.

TO KEEP HONEY

Honey is easier to use and seems to have much more taste when it is in fluid form and not granulated. Therefore, it is best to keep it in a dark place, as it will keep fluid longer. If it does granulate, place the jar in a pan of hot water. It will gradually melt again.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"There goes our cake," cried Dotty. "Cake just as sad as it can be! Why did it have to rain and make it crumble to the ground?"

"Our little friends have lost the place they called their home. They will have to share for miles, no doubt, before another house like that is found."

"There's no use crying," said one man. "We'll have to do the best we can. Right now, I wish the rain would stop. I don't like hiding here."

"Gee, nor do I," said Goldy, "though this was a handy place to go. As long as we're beneath these rocks, there's not a thing to fear."

Then the old woman who'd been kind to all of them said, "I will find a way to make a brand new house. 'Twill be another cake.

"I'll make it heavier, I guess. Then it won't topple in a mess. Now, all of you please follow me. I'll show you where I bake."

They travelled through the woods by fixed to keep an even temperature. "All set," the woman cried.

"The cake dough goes into a pan. I'll bake the cake that I can." The oven door was opened and the cake was pushed inside.

It wasn't very long until the woman said, "Now comes the thrill! I'm going to take the cake out. I just hope it isn't flat."

Said Windy, "Oh, we hope that too." The big cake then came into view. It surely was a dandy. Goldy shouted, "Look at that!"

A bowl of cake dough soon was mixed. The oven then was quick-

Who Are You?

Lamb

Charles Lamb, the great English essayist, asks, "Who first imposed those gentle names?" and skips to the conclusion that his ancestors were shepherds. There is little doubt, however, that the name was taken from a common sign on English Inns: the medieval times, when it was the fashion in art to portray a lamb bearing a small banner, the sacred origin of the Holy Lamb of the Trinity having been totally forgotten. Old inns and coaching houses bearing this sign are still to be found in England.

The cost-of-arms here displayed is that of the Lamb family of County Kent, England, whose descendant, Anthony Lamb, came to Virginia and settled in York County. He was twice married and had several children. He died in 1708.

It is said that the first representative of the name in this country was Percy or Piercy Lamb, who came to the eastern shore of Maryland prior to 1640, and settled in what is now Kent County.

Actually painting your lips does not mean that they will have a painted look. Quite the contrary. If you use two or three shades of lipstick and apply the lipstick with a paint brush, you will get a more natural effect than if you used only color. Thin lips should be darkened at the corners and have a lighter color lipstick toward the middle to make them look full.

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The baby fell against the fence of her play pen and bumped her nose hard.

Instantly it turned as red as a cherry. She sat up and looked about while you could count ten. Then she began to yell.

Her mother went on talking. The baby went on yelling. "Hard hearted woman. Brought the callers, having a hard time to keep from falling to keep from the poor little soul and hugging her tight.

Her brother, aged four, came downstairs stamping. Half way down there was a raucous followed by bumps. He landed in the lower hall with the velocity of a mail bag.

"Hop up," called his mother, not with that maddening bright tone that fools no child, but as though she was saying, "Dry your hands."

Brother didn't hop. He shrieked, but he lay there.

"Do let me go to him," begged one of the girls.

"Certainly. But be careful."

A CHANGE OF SUBJECT HELPS

Over went the comforter clucking and crooning in her throat, only to receive a double kick on the shins. The roars increased.

"Mama. I'm hurted."

The young lady retired to her chair. "I hope you are not offended," smiled the staunch little mother. "Buddy, stop yelling."

"I—I fell down stairs."

"Yes, I know. I'm very sorry. Please, come here."

"No, you come and pick me up."

She didn't. He got up and limped over. "I hurted my knee."

The ladies thought she would kick him up then. She didn't. "Will you please go out and tell Florence I'd like her to bring in a plate of cakes."

Off he went like a flash. So much for the knee.

THE OBVIOUS THING TO DO

Both children were quite all right, yet those two visitors, not much more than girls themselves, decided that when they married and had children and they got hurt they wouldn't be so brookish about it. Their arms were itching to cuddle those two capsules, dry their tears and put the sore spots. Even the kicks were forgotten. "He would not kick his mother. He wanted her and needed her," thought the repulsed one.

They told me and I have pictured it as nearly as possible.

O. R. Barton

"Listen, sisters," quoth I. "Don't you know that Betty wanted to cry and hurt you a hundred or a hundred times more than you did? She's a good mother, I happen to know. She gives up almost everything to take first class care of those babies.

"It takes will and strength of character to put yourself in the background and do what is best at the time. Making a fuss over little accidents is largely a matter of relief to one's own feelings.

LATER COMES THE EXAMINATION

"After you left and the emotional crisis of Buddy's accident was over, be sure she stripped him and looked him over for possible bruises. There is a lot to be gained by not allowing any child's self pity to become ingrained. Of course if it had been serious she would have acted at once. But a yell is usually a sign that breath and skull are intact."

"But if she started on him yesterday why does he still cry?" they asked.

"It takes a long time. Anyway Buddy won't quite be a stoic. No one is—ever. But grown-ups who are terribly, terribly sorry for themselves usually come from the 'mama's poor little darling did the bad floor hit you?' when they were little."

Menus Suitable For Fall Bridal Dinners

By MARY E. DAGUE

Here comes the October bride—and the bridesmaids in their fine autumnal colors and the showers and the luncheons and the wedding feast itself. What fun! Especially in these informal days when it is perfectly all right to have a simple wedding breakfast or luncheon instead of the more elaborate event which used to make dents in nerves, pocketbooks and digestions.

If you want to call the party for the bridal group breakfast, then have it at noon or before. It is luncheon up to 6 p.m. and after that it becomes supper.

o matter how simple the fare or how few the guests, you will want flowers for the bride's table—roses probably, in her favorite color or in white. And the table itself should gleam with the best silver in the family and sparkle with the best glass. If it's late enough in the day, you will want candles; but not, of course, for breakfast or luncheon if the room is well-lighted.

SET TABLE PRECISELY

Set your table with meticulous precision—knives to the right of the service plate, cutting edge toward the plate and the end of the handle one inch from the edge of the table; forks to the left, tines up; spoons to the right of the knives.

In some respect the October bride has a wider choice of foods than her sister who went through it all in June. Harvest brings such a wealth of food delicacies that her selection is unlimited.

Here are a few menus to serve when it's a sit-down affair:

Menu No. I

Chicken Bouillon
Lobster Cutlets with late Baby Lima Beans in Cream
Avocado Pear and Grape Fruit Salad
Biscuit Tortoni
Bride's Cake Coffee

Menu No. II

Fruit Cup
Filet of Sole with Asparagus Tips and Hollandaise Sauce
Glazed Capon
Sweet Potatoes in Sherry Sauce
Spinach and Mushroom Timbales
Frozen Fruit Salad
Pecan Ice-box Pudding
Coffee

Menu No. III

Assorted Hors d'Oeuvres consisting of
Caviar Canapes Cheese Puffs
Stuffed Cucumber Rings
Baked Mushrooms filled with Crabmeat
Oyster Patties
Squabs baked in Milk
Shadow Potatoes
Stuffed Pepper Cups
Salad of Peaches Moulded in Lime Jelly with Cream Cheese Dressing
Neapolitan Ice Cream
Bride's Cake Coffee

Customs vary about cutting and serving the wedding cake. Some people do it at the wedding party and others distribute to the guests small pieces of both the wedding and bride's cake in little satin boxes. However that may be, the wedding cake should be made at least four weeks before the wedding and frosted a day or two before it is to be used. Always a dark fruit cake, it is elaborately decorated and may serve as a centerpiece on the bride's table.

The bride's cake is a white butter cake and from time immemorial has contained a button, a ring, a piece of silver and a thimble. This frosted, decorated cake is cut by the bride and served first to the bridal party. If there are many guests it is served to the bridal party only, in fact.

Though soup is not ordinarily a breakfast dish, it may be served at the wedding breakfast. So may an elaborate sweet course.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapes, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs with celery, cinnamon rolls, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Crabmeat a la King, steamed squash, carrot sticks, plum cobbler, milk, tea.

DINNER: Baked fresh ham with apples and raisins, riced potatoes, lima beans, jellied red cabbage and sweet green peppers, grape juice tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

Almost any of the soft pliable woolens, the new velveteens, crepe silk, novelty rayons, etc., are suitable fo. this little dress, that you'll find especially easy to make.

Nothing could be more practical or smarter than the original model pictured in dark red diagonal woolen with matching velveteen trim.

In checked velveteen with self-collar and cuffs, with bengaline belt in harmonizing shade, it's very distinctive.

Gay angora plaid woolen is adorable for school wear, with white starched linen collar and cuffs, made detachable because of the laundering, for white must be spotless to be smart.

PLEA FOR DISMISSAL OF MANSLAUGHTER CASE REFUSED

Goodridge Avers His Speed Slow As Looby Hit

Accused Motorist's Evidence Is Confirmed By Wife—Case Going On

Taking the stand in his own defence in criminal court on Friday, Albert Goodridge told Mr. Justice Ewing and a jury of six his version of the fatal crash at 107A avenue and 100 street on the evening of May 11 last, as a result of which George Looby, local plumber, died nine days later. Goodridge is charged with manslaughter as a result of the collision of his and Looby's car. His fate rested in the hands of the jury, Friday afternoon.

Goodridge frankly admitted that he had driven out to St. Albert with Mrs. Goodridge and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. McNee, and that there they had had two glasses of beer before returning to the city by way of 124 street and Jasper avenue. At Jasper and 100 street, Goodridge stopped his car to let a street car discharge and take on passengers and then turned north, following a coupe ahead of him.

SLOWED DOWN

Accused swore that his original speed was 20 miles an hour; that he slowed to 15 miles an hour to enter the intersection, and he slapped on the brakes when he saw Looby's car and hit his car at about five miles an hour.

Mrs. Irene Goodridge confirmed the story of her husband.

In his address to the jury, W. R. Howson, defence counsel, reminded the good men and true that Looby was certified by the physicians to have died of pneumonia and this absolved his client of the charge that he did "kill and slay George Looby."

LAUGH IN COURT

A laugh arose in court when Mr. Howson was discussing the evidence regarding the noise made by cars in movement, when he said, "We can not all have nice new big cars like the government is getting now."

E. B. Cogswell, K.C., pressed for a conviction on the grounds that Goodridge had been careless and negligent and that his handling of the car had been responsible for the collision and the death.

Court resumed at 2:15 p.m. when His Lordship summed up the case

DR. ALEXANDER RAPS COUNCIL, SCHOOL BOARD

Addresses School Teachers at Banquet in Hudsonia Thursday

Likening the city council and school board to ostriches with their heads in the sand kicking in the air and pretending to ignore or be unaware of happenings, Dr. W. H. Alexander in addressing a banquet of the Edmonton School Inspectorate teachers at the Hudsonia on Thursday night declared that the teachers were those receiving the kicks.

The banquet was held in connection with the annual convention of teachers of the Edmonton Inspectorate, a two-day session revolving around the Normal School.

H. D. Ainlay, president of the organization sponsoring the convention, presided.

QUESTIONS OF SALARIES

Dr. Alexander dealt largely with the question of salaries. He said the teachers now were on the defensive and specially as regards salaries although they were on the offensive so far as organization and progress of organization was concerned.

The teachers were being trampled over and being attacked the wrong way. Reduction of teachers salaries was not an effective method of economy, he said. He declared taxes today were like pyramids turned upside down.

Items of entertainment included a violin solo by Nolan Henderson, accompanied by Miss Zelma Moyes and a vocal solo by William Cromb, accompanied by I. Williams.

FRONTAL ATTACK

An address featuring the convention at the normal school was that by C. O. Hicks, who delivered a frontal attack on interest rates and the interest racket from which the country is suffering.

Interest was retarding educational progress. Five per cent was too high and at that rate money ceased to function.

The convention continued on Friday.

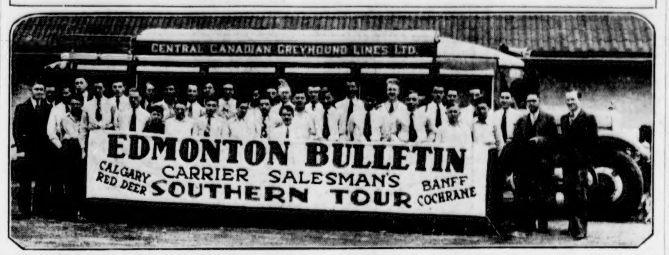
Bulletin Boys Off On Annual Bus Tour



At 10 o'clock Friday morning 32 Edmonton Bulletin carriers, accompanied by several officials of the circulation department, left the city by bus on a three-day four weeks' tour of Southern Alberta. The boys are winners of the circulation contest which has been staged over the past few weeks, and their outstanding business ability has won for them the right to make this annual bus tour. Pictured above is the happy band, with the bus in the background, and the banner announcing the trip. On the extreme left is Victor Soley, of the circulation department, while next to him is Don MacCallister, assistant branch manager. On the extreme right is M. E. "Red" Norman, city circulator, and on his right is H. J. McCoy, manager of the main office branch. Driver of the bus is R. S. "Speed" Olson.

32 Bulletin Carrier Boys Leave on Annual Southern Tour Friday

Three-Day Holiday Trip to Calgary and Banff National Park

Winners of a hard-fought circulation contest extending over the past few weeks, 32 Edmonton Bulletin carrier boys boarded a Greyhound bus at ten o'clock Friday morning for the first leg of a three-day holiday tour which will carry them as far as Banff.

This is the fourth annual trip of its kind, the event originating in 1931 when a band of Bulletin carriers made a tour to Calgary. In the succeeding years the tour was enlarged to include points farther afield.

PROVEN SALES ABILITY

Each boy who clinched aboard the bus Friday did so with the thought that he had earned the right to the holiday. The young salesmen have been unflagging in their efforts to boost circulation and the results obtained from the well-organized campaign provide ample proof of their sales ability.

Now on the boys who failed to "make the grade" for the Edmonton-Banff-Calgary trip forgotten. Each carrier was amply rewarded for the business he turned in.

The present tour group calls for a stop-over at Red Deer for lunch, the party then proceeding to Calgary. In the southern city the carriers will be guests of Manager J. A. Knoepfli and Adolph Sperks, of the Hotel York.

In the evening they will attend a movie in the Capitol theatre as guests of Manager Peter Egan.

DAY IN BANFF

On Saturday the party will travel to Banff. The stay there will be featured by swimming in the famous Cave-and-Basin, a cruise on the Bow River and a sight-seeing tour through Banff and the sur-

BAKERS PROTEST PRICE CUTTING COMPETITION

Claiming unfair price cutting and unreasonable wages paid to bakery employees, master bakers and bakery operators will appeal to the government of Alberta to place bread under the Public Utility Act.

This decision was made at a meeting of the executive of the Master Bakers' association with the executive of the employers' association, held Thursday evening at the office of Standard Brands Limited. H. H. Reid, secretary of the Master Bakers, was chairman.

E. A. C.-Kinsmen Opener Today

The opening game of the two-out-of-three series for the city championship in junior football league, between the Edmonton Athletic Club and Kinsmen teams will be played Saturday at 3 p.m. at Renfrew park. The second game will be played Monday, but the place has not yet been fixed.

Gleaned From Today's News

To spend the holiday week-end with his parents, Emery E. Roper, president of the Canadian Labor Party, left Friday afternoon for Ryley where his father operates a farm.

Players and executives of the University of Alberta rugby team will leave over the Canadian Pacific Railway for Lethbridge and Calgary to play a series of games over the holiday.

Following are permits issued by the city building department recently: E. B. Harrold, frame and stucco semi-detached dwelling at 9613-15 100 street, $5,200; Sam Schecter, repairs to foundation and re-shingling of a building at 9020 112 street, $600; Mrs. A. Congdon, frame dwelling and garage at 11332-96 street, $5,000; Thos. J. Mangan, frame addition to dwelling at 11816 95A street, $500; California Confectionery, repairs to foundation and store front at 10368-70 82 avenue, $500.

Charging that mining operations under their homes by the Beverly Coal Company Limited had undermined their property, used up coal beds which they had leased, and ruined their water supply, Thomas Johnston, Rachel Annie Johnston, Paule Loshni and Lena Loshni filed claim against the company for a total of $1,573 damages on the above grounds, through the legal firm of Lavell and Foss. Injunctions are also asked to restrain the coal company from continuing their operations in this area.

Police Court

Released from jail Wednesday, caught sticking their heads into parked cars to steal coats Thursday and back into jail Friday to serve two concurrent terms of six months each at hard labor, was the fast-moving performance of Ray Hammon and Joe St. Laurent elected to fight the charges. Constables Art Johnson and Oliver Woodward who made the arrests, testified against the pair, who raided cars parked outside the Gyro carnival on 102 street Thursday night.

* * *

A family dispute on 101 street early Thursday evening that could be heard a block away, resulted in the cars of Constable H. L. Graham, brought convictions of creating a disturbance against Erling Hansen and Mrs. John Nelson that took two $5 fines to square. Both pleaded guilty.

* * *

"Start walking now, so you'll be sure to get away," unminded Magistrate Col. P. C. H. Primrose when he remanded one month for sentence, four drifters, Hugh Mulligan, Jack Thompson, Janits H. Ferguson and Joe McCarthy, who pleaded guilty to vagrancy. The warrants will not be served in one month, but the four red riders promised to be far away by that time.

* * *

It cost Ronald Chapman of Wilkie, Sask., his last dollar to gain freedom after pleading guilty to a breach of the railway act. Beating his way from his home town to the coast, Chapman was taken off a C.N.R. freight train in the Calder yards Thursday night. He had $6.30 on him, the price, almost to a cent of the fine imposed by the court.

Louis Tendel, flashy defencemen of the Montreal Canadiens saved himself a couple of dollars when he left recently for the training camp. His name was called Friday morning to answer a charge of reckless driving, the usual penalty for which is $15 and costs and a driver's license suspension.

"He's left to join his hockey team, or something," said Prosecutor Cecil Becker. So I suggest the case be stricken from the docket for the time being."

The absent player will face the charge when the ice wars are over in the east.

A remand on a $2,000 bond to the high court to face a charge of wounding horses with a shotgun, was given John Vanderhagen, farmer of Leduc.

At adjournment time, Alex Bilodeau of Millet was still fighting charges of driving while intoxicated and negligence arising from a recent accident.

"Squire" Eardley Jackson, breathing the morning breeze as he walked down Victoria towards the police court; Gus Lundberg, handing out "flying dope" at Canadian Airways headquarters; Frank Wheeler, heading towards town via the low level bridge; Paul Malone, scurrying to Varsity for an early lecture; Stan Hazlett, wheeling the gas buggy up Scona hill; Herb Haudy, speeding into his office on McDougall.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Derby hats of radiant hues, which have appeared in the show windows of leading haberdashers in many cities, recently staggered the citizenry of downtown Edmonton with a daring debut in a Jasper avenue showcase. The color range includes sky blue, leaf green, old rose and buttercup yellow and—worst of all—they are made and intended for men.

What about this? Can we stand it? Do you think we'll ever come to it? were questions The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter frantically asked a few fearless thinkers. They answered thusly:

HOWARD HODGSON, hat salesman: "They say they are wearing them in the east and in the States, but I think anyone here will have the nerve. I'd just like to see the type that would sport one of those dizzy domed pieces. The colors are so bright that they'd be hard on the nerves. If they were a bit more subdued, say a navy blue or a dark green or a nice rich brown, they might become very popular. As they stand, I believe Edmonton is too conservative to give them a try.

MARIANNE PEARSON, Varsity co-ed: "I'm afraid they won't be very popular. It would be nice to see men with a touch of color in their hats and suits, but I think Edmonton is an unlikely place for it to start. This is a conservative city."

DON McKAY, student: "They may be all right for some people, but I wouldn't wear one to a May Day party. I've seen only one boy wearing one of them and you couldn't publish what I thought about it."

HARRY PREVEY, dairy employee: "I'll wear one if it will stop raining. What I mean to say is, how have you been?"

* * *

CARL MILLER, Varsity student: "I'd have to see one on somebody to give a real opinion. If they look neat and snappy I expect we will be wearing them."

ROAD REPORT

Roads throughout the district are in good condition. Light rains during the night in some sections did not affect the highways, and will the exception of Waskatenau, which is muddy but drying, there is no mud.

A detailed report follows:

St. Paul, O.K.; Waskatenau, muddy, but drying; North Battleford, O.K.; Wainwright, O.K.; Viking, O.K.; Hardisty, O.K.; Macklin, O.K.; Mulhurst, rough.

Military Orders

Squadron orders by officer commanding "B" squadron, 19th Alberta Dragoons. The squadron will hold an organization smoker in Connaught armouries on Monday, 8th Oct. at 8 p.m. Dress: Civilian clothes.—E. W. Day, Capt., for officer commanding B Squadron. 19th A.D.

TEACHERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Officers were elected, and two addresses heard, at the morning's annual session of the Edmonton Teachers' Association, held at Normal school. E. A. Corbett gave an interesting talk on "Zarahoff," the mystery man of Europe. Professor E. H. Strickland chose "Parasites" as the subject of his talk.

Officers elected were as follows: F. C. Casselman, hon president; W. J. Kelly, president; H. D. Ainlay, past president; S. Luther, first vice-president, Miss Helen Crosswell, second vice-president; E. J. Jones, third vice-president.

The annual conference is continuing with an afternoon session.

A specially interesting and informing meeting of The Edmonton Poultry and Pet Stock Association will be held next Tuesday, October 9 at 8 p.m. in the Hall of the North Side Public Library.

Teachers Hear G. Fred McNally

G. Fred McNally, provincial supervisor of schools was the speaker at the annual convention of the Vegreville school inspectorate on Thursday.

Of the total number of teachers in the inspectorate of 179, there were 172 registered at the convention.

Mr. McNally dealt with proposed changes in the school curriculum and the work accomplished by a committee working on same last June.

BUYING BOOSTS MINING PRICES

TORONTO, Oct. 5—Selective buying boosted the prices of a number of the gold shares moderately today, imparting a firm appearance to the whole board. Hollinger returned to the $21 mark.

Announcement of an inquiry into the recent decline of Teck-Hughes had no effect today on the action of the stock which remained steady.

McIntyre gained 1.25 to 45.50 and Lakeshore added 50 cents.

STOCK PRICES SHOW SIGNS OF GOING PLACES

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—The stock market showed signs of going somewhere today and, in a brisk first-hour rally, prices advanced 1 to 2 more points.

The activity dwindled later, although gains were fairly well held.

Narrow changes prevailed in the Canadian list. McIntyre and Dome were virtually even. International Nickel improved a shade. On the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were each a trifle higher. Dominion government bonds ruled steady. The Canadian dollar eased 1-16 at 102 7-16 cents.

THE CONQUEST OF MT. EVEREST

For hundreds of years Mount Everest defied conquest by man. But finally this great peak towering 29,002 feet above sea level was conquered by the Houston aeroplane Expedition, which in 1933 circled the highest peak in the world for 15 minutes, and achieved "the impossible".

YOU WOULDN'T BELIEVE it was possible!

There's an achievement too, in the distinctive quality of Branvin—that's why it is the most popular fortified wine—it's so different that it has met with instant approval by thousands of Canadians.

WHAT A difference!

Only Jordan can make Branvin Fortified Wine—an accomplishment in flavor and rich mellowness that identifies it as the outstanding native wine of Canada.

The first sip will prove that it is delightfully different and satisfying.

REFUSE PLEA FOR DISMISSAL COURT CASE

for the party, who then retired to consider their verdict.

A defence demand for a dismissal was denied by Mr. Justice Ewing Tuesday afternoon in criminal court after the crown had closed its case against Albert Goodridge, charged with manslaughter as a result of fatal injuries suffered by George Looby, local plumber, after his car had been in a crash with one driven by Goodridge on the night of May 11 last at the corner of 102A avenue and 109 street, within a stone's throw of the court room in which the trial is proceeding.

W. R. Howson, M.L.A., defence counsel, made his application to have the case taken from the jury shortly after court resumed in the afternoon, on the grounds that the Crown had not established that there was sufficient evidence to establish any criminal negligence on the part of his client.

Arguments advanced by Mr. Howson were opposed by E. B. Cogswell, K.C., crown prosecutor, and His Lordship ruled that Mr. Howson's arguments should be heard by the jury, which was withdrawn while the legal argument took place.

NOT VERBATUM

Statements given the police by the accused following his arrest, were refused entry into the court records by His Lordship, when referred to the principles which he has expounded before in criminal trials—that where a literal transcript of accused's remarks and the questions asked him, are not made, and is it not also shown that such remarks are entirely voluntary, they can not be used against an accused person at his trial.

"I have no doubt that the police officers acted with the greatest propriety," Mr. Justice Ewing observed, replying to a query of Mr. Cogswell as to whether there was any suggestion that the police had not exercised the greatest care in getting the statements.

Mr. Cogswell argued that all persons involved in an automobile accident are required by law to report the particulars of such occurrence to the police, and that the police were only following their routine in taking the statement.

One statement was submitted by Traffic Officer Ed. Kenny, included amongst other reports dealing with the fatal crash, but not personally written by the officer in question, that it was "only an outline."

This was rejected on the grounds A further statement submitted by Detective Appleby, though more in the nature of a direct statement, did not contain a signature of both question and answer, and was also rejected.

HURRIED TO SCENE

Detective Appleby resumed his position on the stand for cross-examination when court started off again at 2 p.m., and he was followed by Detective Alex. Bremner who had been on patrol with Appleby two blocks away when they heard the crash and hurried to the scene.

Sergeant George Edwards told of responding to the alarm of the accident from headquarters, and confirmed the evidence of the other officers with regard to the positions of the two cars after the crash.

Some sharp give-and-take ensued between Mr. Howson and Constable Kenny during the officer's cross-examination with regard to plans, measurements and pictures secured under the traffic officer's direction.

Harry Bevridge and Andrew Aitken were the first two defence witnesses called. They testified that they had been sitting in a beer parlor in a local hotel on the night in question, at around 9 p.m., when Looby, the deceased, came in and sat down at their table and had two glasses of beer with them. He was still at the table when they went out, they said. They were known him before this evening.

EXAMINED CARS

Ralph A. Cudmore, motor mechanic, was the third defence witness, and said that he had examined both of the cars involved in the crash. He estimated that Goodridge's car was going at about five or seven miles an hour at the time of the crash, and that Looby must have been trying to turn north at the time of the impact, otherwise his light car would have rolled over Looby's car suffered most of its and over. He also opined that damage from smashing into the curb.

By a curious quirk of fate, Edna Benson, a nurse, was just then north of the court house, had been accosted by Looby, she said, as she was walking down 109 street to the post office at around 10 p.m. to mail a letter. She said she was walking along by the Edmonton Motors when he drove up alongside the curb on the wrong side of the street and invited her for a drive. She had taken a good look at him, because she had thought at first that it might have been someone she had known.

She said that his car had driven on south, turned west, and then apparently turned north and east again, driving slowly, for as she nearly reached her home after mailing the letter, she saw him pass the corner and heard the crash. She had hurried to help him at the same time as Dr. J. Boulanger, who also lives in this vicinity, when the ensuing crash hurled Looby out of his car onto the pavement.

William R. Richardson, mechanic, said that he had switched off the light bulbs in Looby's car after the crash and that there had been a faint smell of liquor in the car.

South Side Auto Camp Improvements

Anticipating a heavy increase in motor traffic with the completion of the Jasper highway next year, the Alberta Motor Association and the South Side Business Men's Association are busily considering plans for further improvements to the South Side auto camp.

Considerable improvement has already been made to the camp site. The above-named organizations raised $1,000 for additional accommodation and facilities, including four large cabins "now bringing the number to 16," Ted Speight for all, a large modern wash house and hot and cold shower baths. The work was finished this year and visitors have expressed satisfaction with the arrangements.

An official visit was paid to the camp a short time ago by Mayor D. K. Knott, Commissioner David Mitchell, W. W. Brady and City engineering department, J. G. Butler, C. H. Grant, K.C., and A. Burrows, of the A.M.A. They were pleased with the results obtained.

Oct. 24 has been named as the tentative date upon which the board will visit Medicine Hat.

Among the individuals and organizations submitting briefs at Calgary are: City council, School Board, Dr. W. A. Lincoln, Western Stock Growers' association, Alberta Wheat Pool, Board of Trade and H. W. Ford.

At Lethbridge the city and others will be heard.

Edmonton representations will be received from the city, Civic Government association, Alberta branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' association, Hudson's Bay Co., Board of Health, Western Grain Growers' association.

In addition to those mentioned above, representations will be received from about 20 other sources in various parts of the province.

THRESHING IS STILL DELAYED IN NORTHLAND

Several days of fine weather will be required before threshing can be resumed in the Peace River territory, according to the crop report of the Northern Alberta Railways for the week previous to Oct. 4, issued on Friday by authority of John Callaghan, general manager.

A light rain on Wednesday night again delayed operations at Dawson Creek and threshing should be resumed next week. Occasional showers with more rain on Thursday have made it impossible to cut or thresh at Pouce Coupe. Four or five days of fine weather will be required before operations can be resumed.

Weather is clearing at Hythe but it is still too wet for cutting to be general.

Threshing is still delayed at Beaverlodge on account of occasional showers but weather is now clearing. Neither cutting nor threshing have been resumed at Wembley but it is expected threshing will be resumed next week. There was more light rain last night on the Grande Prairie line but farmers were also experiencing showery weather and harvesting will not be resumed until next week.

Priceless Old Pictures Doomed As Fire Starts

LISBON, Portugal, Oct. 5—The famous old Royal Palace of Queluz, known as the Portuguese Versailles, was afire today.

It was feared the whole building and its priceless pictures and statuary were doomed.

No Trace Found Of Neil Brown

Scores of Boy Scouts under the direction of Sergeant Major Dan Fraser, head of the city police traffic squad combed the city and out-lying districts Thursday but no trace was found of Neil Brown, manager of the L. P. Mason Company, who has been missing since September 17.

Every foot of bank along the river shores was thoroughly searched, and parties combed the bushland of Westmount Park and areas north of the city limits. Squads of searchers went as far as the Country Club and down stream to Beverly.

Despite a many days intensive search the disappearance of the wholesale manager remains a mystery.

As Giants Lost In Desperate Fight For Pennant

George Davis, Phils., Slides Into Home Plate, Beating Giants

PATS and PANS by BILL LEWIS

It will be many long moons before baseball fans forget yesterday's classic 12-inning game in the World Series which saw Lynwood Rowe pitch Detroit Tigers to a thrilling victory over St. Louis Cardinals . . . That game will go down as one of the most memorable in the annals of World Series play for many reasons . . . It was fitting that the triumph should fall to the Arkansas schoolboy wonder whose grand pitching did so much this year to put Tigers in the fight for the worlds championship . . . Making his first appearance in the classic, Rowe got off to a somewhat shaky start, but then allowed only one hit in the last nine innings of the battle.

It was the second remarkable pitching performance in two days, following as it did Dizzy Dean's brilliant win for St. Louis on the previous day . . . The games to date indicate there is going to be some exceptionally fine mound work before the series is over.

Speaking of baseball, fans in the city and throughout Northern Alberta will be interested in the announcement today that Earl Mack's American League All-Stars will definitely be here for two exhibition games on Thursday and Friday of next week . . . Few there are who have not read of the home-run hitting of Jimmy Foxx, one of the hardest clouters baseball has yet produced . . . Foxx is coming with the team and, as it is his first visit to this part of the world, there will be tremendous interest in his play alone . . . Aside from him, however, Earl Mack has gathered together a galaxy of stars, including Heinie Manush, the big outfielder who formerly was with Edmonton Eskimos in the days of professional ball here . . . Heinie was third leading hitter in the American League this season, finishing only behind Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, and Charley Gehringer, ace second-sacker of Detroit Tigers.

All that is needed now is some good weather next week . . . On the occasion of the big leagers' last visit to Edmonton, snow and cold prevented the second game of their series being played but it is hoped that the weather man will act more kindly this time . . . Baseball fans will do a lot of praying between now and next Thursday.

Between hockey players and boxers, the N.C.A. is a busy spot these fall afternoons . . . Training for the coming hockey season is Roger Jenkins, recently traded to Montreal Les Canadiens by Chicago Black Hawks; Louis Trudel, of the latter club; Eric Kenny and Earl Robertson of the Eskimos, all are working out daily . . . Helping put the boys through their paces is Sig Tracey, who fights in Calgary next week and also trains with Eddie Wenstob and Johnny Blochlinger.

Jimmy Foxx Tops Starry Brigade of Baseball 'Greats'

World Series Sidelights

By PAUL MICKELSON

DETROIT, Oct. 5.—Rowe started out Thursday like a "Schoolboy," but finished like a professor.

Both the "Schoolboy" and Dizzy Dean are making the baseball experts swell their chests. The experts said they were good and drummed up probably the greatest fanfare that ever accompanied any two players into their first World Series. Usually, the famous first-timers are colossal busts.

Rowe, who watched Medwick hammer out four hits in successive times at bat Wednesday, didn't take a chance on "Ducky Wucky" yesterday, holding him to one hit in five chances. Medwick didn't get a real good ball all day.

"Goose" Goslin's throw to the plate to nip Medwick in the third inning was a masterpiece. It was so strong and accurate that it caught Medwick by 10 feet and ultimately saved the game as the run would have been the Cardinal's third.

If the Tigers had lost, Hank Greenberg's face would have been red. The big Detroit first baseman has been conspicuous after chance to become the day's hero only to miss, striking out twice with the tying run on base. He played a sparkling defensive game to make up for it.

Every time Frankie Frisch goes to bat he gets a record. He got one hit yesterday to run his World Series mark to 35. Frisch also holds the record for most series games played, now 45, and most times at bat, now 159.

Al Schacht and Joe E. Brown participated in a prize fight within a roped arena near the plate as the fans roared. Joe won by a "knockout" in the second round. Al was counted out by George Pegler, who caught a few of the synthetic punches himself.

Major League Stars Play in Edmonton on Next Thursday, Friday

With one of the starriest groups of major-league baseball all-stars ever to go on tour, Earl Mack's team chosen from the American League will be in Edmonton for two exhibition games on Thursday and Friday of next week. The games will be played at 12:15 noon in order to permit fans to see the players at their best at the warmest time of day and to make it more convenient for fans to attend.

Final arrangements for the visit of the baseball "greats" were completed yesterday and a lineup of the players coming was received by Clarence Campbell from the tour manager. This lineup includes a number of the greatest players in the game today.

HOME-RUN STAR

Perhaps foremost among these is Jimmy Foxx, one of the most brilliant performers in baseball and peerless home-run slugger of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Foxx, who hit 44 homers during the season just closed, has thousands of admirers all over the continent and his play here will be watched with the closest of interest.

Heinie Manush, former outfielder with Edmonton Eskimos, now with Washington Senators, who finished third in American League hitting this year with an average of .349 is also coming with the team.

The squad fairly bristles with heavy hitters and it is a good fielding aggregation. It has a fine pair of catchers in Luke Sewell of Washington, and Hayes, the 19-year-old sensation of Athletic. The pitching staff includes Earl Whitehill and Thomas, of Washington; Ted Lyons, of Chicago White Sox; and Rube Walberg, of Boston Red Sox.

In the outfield there will be Roger Cramer, of Philadelphia; Campbell of St. Louis Browns; and Porter, of Boston Red Sox.

STRONG INFIELD

The infield will have Foxx at first base; Red Kress, of Washington, at second; Hopkins, of Chicago, at shortstop; and Pinky Higgins, of Philadelphia, at third.

Last but far from least, there will be Al Schact, the mirth-provoking comedian-coach of Washington. Senators, who provided much fun here during the last visit of the big leaguers.

Earl Mack, son of the venerable Connie, and manager of the club, will be field pilot here.

This squad will meet an all-star team of amateurs in the games here.

While the price of admission to the games is naturally higher than for the regular baseball exhibitions played in the city, officials point out that they are unable to have them lower as the prices are set by the team's management in the contract.

The oldest known lighthouses were towers built by the Libyans and Cushites of Lower Egypt.

Cardinals Still Favored To Win

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5. — Despite their loss of the second world series game, the Cardinals remain the favorites to win the championship, according to revised odds of Tom Kearney, betting commissioner. Here are Kearney's revised odds:

Cardinals to win series, 7 to 10.

Detroit to win series, even money.

Perry Again Hears Call Of Gridiron

MONTREAL, Oct. 5. — The call of the gridiron has proven too strong for Gordie Perry, fleet little centreline halfback of Montreal football club. Perry, who announced his retirement this season, will be at his old post when Montreal starts the Big Four schedule here Saturday against Toronto Argonauts, it was announced Thursday.

Murder in Hearts of Cardinals

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

DETROIT, Oct. 5—Murder was in the hearts of St. Louis Cardinals as they charged into their dressing room, all of them with faces burning with rage, after they had dropped a heart-breaking game to Detroit Tigers in the 12th inning Thursday.

Frankie Frisch, fiery little leader of the National league champions, was so enraged that he ordered newspaper correspondents awaiting him out of the room until he had time to cool off, or perhaps tell some of his players just what he thought of them.

"TOUGH TO LOSE"

"It was a tough game to lose," he blurted out later. "We shouldn't have lost it. Our defence wasn't it. What it should have been. Hallahan pitched a wonderful game but the team that got the break won it."

Frisch, no doubt, was referring to the incident in the ninth inning when Gerald Walker, pinch-hitting for Jo-Jo White, Tiger centrefielder, popped a high fly along the first base foul line and both Delancey, the Cardinals' catcher, and Rip Collins, first baseman, through a mixup, allowed it to fall without either making an attempt to catch it. Two seconds later Walker singled, scoring Fox with the tying run.

"I don't care what anybody says, I still love to win," Frisch yelled, "breaks or no breaks. I came near tossing the game away myself. Nobody is perfect and we all make mistakes, but I think we booted away today's game."

The Cardinals, red-necked and fighting mad, tossed their baseball equipment around the room in an expression of their anger.

Frisch will send Paul Dean out against the Tigers in St. Louis today, figuring that the other half of the Dean brothers is ready to knock the Tigers back on their heels.

TIGERS HILARIOUS

Over in the Tiger dressing room all was hilarity with Goose Goslin, whose single drove in the winning run, and Schoolboy Rowe, coming in for tremendous back-slapping and hand-shaking.

When the players stormed through the door, they surrounded Goslin, pounded him on the back, grasped him by the hand or kicked him in the pants.

Manager Mickey Cochrane said he felt his Tigers were on their way to victory and ready to start hitting.

He will start Tommy Bridges, the slim, 155-pounder against the Cardinals tomorrow.

"Didn't Rowe pitch a swell game," he asked.

"I'll tell the cock-eyed world."

Candidate Picked

WOLSELEY, Sask., Oct. 5—Conservatives of the Qu'Appelle federal riding today chose F. E. Parley, sitting member, as their candidate in the next elections.

Bulletin's 10-Mile Road Race Has Strong Field Contesting

Eight entries to date, all popular contestants in distance runs, assures a classy field of runners for the annual Edmonton Bulletin 10-mile road race to be held over the hard grind on Thanksgiving Day, October 8.

The runners will be started on their strenuous grind at 10:00 o'clock at the usual starting point, in front of the Bulletin office and all contestants are requested to report at the starting post at 9:30 o'clock.

Guiding the field over the 10-mile course will be the Silver Hawks Bicycle Club who last year performed this same duty in splendid fashion and again have offered their valuable services.

Also attending the race will be eight members from St. John Ambulance Corps. They will be stationed at various places along the course and will be on hand should any unexpected accident overtake any of the runners on their distance grind.

Final arrangements have been completed by officials in charge of the race and only success will crown this major fall classic.

The race, sponsored by the publishers of the Edmonton Bulletin and held under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, has had repeated success in this annual event and again they expect a great race.

Although the entry may be slightly less than in previous years, it has many well-known contestants entered, including the present titleholder, Jack Wahlberg of Saskatoon. Boasting the interprovincial field to two will be Carl Grohn of Lloydminster, while four local boys and Axel Carlsson of Falun and S. Stevens of Coronation are also entered.

Ray Lamberston, clever runner, will lead the local quartet against the speedy invaders. Lamberston's Edmonton mates will be George Holloway, Willard Walker and R. Bower and they form a quartet with plenty of opposition for the fast stepping inter-provincial field.

Entries will be received by Sergeant John Leslie of the City Police Headquarters and by the Sports Editor of the Edmonton Bulletin. There remains only two days in which to make your entry, as the closing date is set for Saturday.

Rowe's Great Mound Work Features Detroit Triumph

Youthful "Schoolboy" Hurls Tigers to Great 3-2 Victory Over St. Louis Cardinals Thursday to Even World Series

PLAY SHIFTS TO ST. LOUIS TODAY

By ALAN GOULD

DETROIT, Oct. 5.—Surging back into the World Series fight behind the superb pitching of Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, 22-year-old pitching giant from Eldorado, Arkansas, Detroit Tigers came from behind Thursday to capture a 12-inning baseball melodrama from St. Louis Cardinals and serve notice that it's going to be a knock-down-and-drag-out battle for the championship of 1934.

Trailing by one run in a dazzling duel between Rowe and "Lefty" Bill Hallahan of the Cardinals, the American League champions tied the score in the ninth inning on Pinch-Hitter Gerald Walker's single, and triumphed in the 12th, off another southpaw, Bill Walker, as Goose Goslin's rousing baseshit to centre brought Charley Gehringer home with the winning run and clinched a 3-2 decision for the celebrated "Schoolboy."

ONE OF GREATEST FEATS IN HISTORY

Rowe signalled his debut under World Series fire by hurling one of the most spectacular games in championship history. Belted for six hits and a pair of runs inside the first three innings, as the Cardinals got away with a characteristic spurt, the youthful giant steadied down and simply over-powered the National League champions the rest of the way.

Rowe yielded only one hit in the last nine innings, a long double by Pepper Martin in the 11th. From the fourth to the 11th, the Tiger thunderbolt was absolutely invincible as he retired 22 batsmen in order with a bewildering assortment of speed, curves and a change of pace.

Rowe was the big hero for a howling crowd of 43,451 cash customers, a slightly bigger turnout than for the opening game, but he shared the Tiger laurels with Goslin, Walker and Ervin ("Pete") Fox, the light-hitting outfielder who drove in the fourth with a double, and scored the tying run in the ninth.

GOSLIN'S THROW HELPS SAVE GAME

Goslin, besides driving home the winning run, helped save the game in the third when his great throw to Mickey Cochrane, after Jim Collins' single, cut down Medwick at the plate and halted the last Cardinal attack.

Where they had piled up no less than five errors in the first game and performed miserably, the Tigers played errorless ball yesterday.

As a result of their thrilling conquest, the series stands one-all, and it's anybody's baseball war now. The contending forces headed last night for St. Louis and the third game today on the home ground of the National League champions. Paul Dean, younger of the Cardinal pitching brothers, will be assigned the task of picking up the family job where Dizzy Dean left off with an 8-3 decision, Wednesday. The

VICTORIA GRID SQUAD LEADS SCHOOL LOOP

Beats Scona By Big Score While Separate Loses Close Contest

A scrappy, hard-fighting brand of footballers from Separate held the highly touted Garneau senior gridders to a scant 7-2 win. Over at the South Side Athletic grounds Victoria stepped into the circuit leadership with a convincing 23-2 triumph over Scona.

Conceded little chance to even put on a good show, Separate led Garneau 2-1 for most of the tussle and did not surrender this lead until late in the last quarter. Garneau, much the superior squad, could not get going, and were heavily penalized for off-sides.

Hargraves started things off by rouging Separate soon after the kick-off, to put the southerners in front 1-0. Both squads gave the spectators a real thrill all during the initial quarter with their slitter ing array of forward passes. Sutton heaved a beautiful thirty-yard pass to Miller, who ran it into a touch but it was not counted, due to an off-side.

Separate intercepted three of their opponents' passes in a row to put them in scoring position. They then punted. Rootes, of Garneau, fumbled the ball, but thanks to the quick thinking of his team-mate, Sutton, who banged the bouncing pigskin out of bounds, Separate had to be satisfied with a safety touch instead of a regular touchdown.

Most of the fans were spellbound when Separate went into the last half with a 2-1 lead and immediately began to pull for them to retain it. It was rather a hopeless request as Separate was outweighed, outclassed and outpunted, but not outbeaten by Garneau.

Just before the third quarter ended Sutton tied things up with a booming punt to the deadline. With things finally tied up the Garneauites felt more confident and shifted their form of attack to unmerciful line pounding.

The break of the game came when Separate had one of their punts blocked on their thirty yard line and only two minutes to time. Newson of Garneau recovered the ball. The rest was easy. Two end runs, two bucks and the southerners finally registered a touchdown that met with the approval of the officials and won the most exciting contest of the 1934 football season in high school circles 7-2.

Juvenile Soccer Team To Battle For Shasta Cup

Army and Navy Vets, a scrappy young squad of juvenile soccerites, clash with Bennett Aces for the Shasta Cup, emblematic of the Juvenile League soccer supremacy at Diamond Park on Saturday afternoon, starting at 5:00 o'clock. C. Souch will referee the game.

Both teams have made a good showing in their league campaign and on their triumphant stride have battled to the top of the heap and have proven themselves a pair of strong elevens to battle for the trophy.

ARROW BUSSES ARE BANQUETED

With their genial sponsor, Vic Horner, their coach, John "Lefty" Ducey, and the league president, David Little, in attendance, members of the Arrow Busses Junior League Baseball team were tendered an enjoyable banquet at the Shasta last night. After the banquet they were guests of Mr. Findlay, manager of the Empress theatre.

After a successful season in the junior baseball campaign, the banquet last night tendered the players by Vic Horner was a fitting conclusion for the Arrows' baseball activities this season. They will be in the race again next year and that promises much enjoyment for ball fans of this league next season, for the Arrows are possibly the most colorful team in the local junior circuit.

Mr. Horner expressed his appreciation in regard to the sportsmanship shown by his players and extended congratulations for the splendid manner in which President David Little and Secretary Bill Harris handled the league this season.

Unfortunately Mr. Harris, popular organizer of junior baseball and director of the Junior Hockey league, could not be in attendance.

Those in attendance were: Vic Horner, John Ducey, David Little, Mac Colville, Morey Rinstad, Ernie Stevens, Scotty Munro, Lloyd Cunningham, Eddie Gogan, Harry Humphries, Bill Lupul, Johnny Lupul, Stewart Newson, Eddie Williams, Eddie Trudel, Steve Elaschuck, and Tommy Graham.

Tigers will rely on their slim fast ball right-hander, Tommy Bridges.

CARDS HAVE EDGE WITH MOUND CORPS

The Cardinals still look to have the pitching edge on the whole, with the Dizzy yak to taste defeat and Hollahan, the victim only of a super-finish yesterday, but they will need all their resources from now on to check the charge of the Tigers.

Until their spirited rally it looked very much as though Rowe's gathering mates was going to be wasted. Repeatedly with men on bases, the Tigers were impotent before the fast ball and sharp-breaking curve of Hallahan.

After a pair of useful but somewhat flukey two-baggers by Bill Rogell and Fox had produced the first Tiger run, in the fourth, the big guns of the Detroit attack were consistently spiked. Hank Greenberg twice fanned with men on bases. Rowe fanned three times before he came through, in the ninth, with a sacrifice bunt that sent Pete Fox, who had singled, scurrying to second base.

At this critical juncture, Cochrane decided to sunstitute right-handed Gerald Walker for Jo-Jo White, lead-off man. The pinch-hitter lifted the ball on a line to centre field, sending Fox home with the tying run. The blow also knocked Hallahan from the box. Another Cardinal southpaw, Bill Walker, promptly came to the rescue, trapped Harold Walker off first base and then struck out Cochrane, sending the battle into extra innings.

Bill Walker was the direct cause of his own undoing in the 12th. He set the stage for Goslin's winning wallop by walking Gehringer and Greenberg in succession, with two out, in the last frame. The Cardinal southpaw's control was slipping so fast he got only one strike across in 10 successive pitches to the Tiger hitter. The count was one ball on the Goose when the former Washington slugger connected and sent the ball on a line to deep centre that scored the deciding run.

The home players were fairly mobbed by enthusiastic rooters and it took a detail of police to help them fight their way through the jubilant throng to the dressing room.

It was a tough ball game for the Cardinals to lose as it was thrilling to Tiger partisans and deserving to Rowe, whose 13-inning performance on the whole ranks with a lacrosse wor-

Salmonbellies Oppose Orillia Squad Tonight

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 5.—Victors of the west, New Westminster Salmonbellies removed the travelling kinks from their legs here Thursday and stood prepared to take on Orillia Terriers tonight in the first game of the Dominion lacrosse finals. The series will be a three out of five affair and the second and third games will be played here Monday and Wednesday.

If a fourth and fifth game are necessary, Toronto and Orillia will be the scenes of battle between the eastern and western champions of the lacrosse circle. A. C. "Grumpy" Spring, pilot of the Salmonbellies, believes, however, that his fleet footed charges will take the Terriers in three straight.

"There isn't going to be any fooling with "these easterners," was the word Spring carried into town from the coast.

"Three straight, that's us," added the confident pilot, veteran of many a lacrosse war.
